Boycott of Suez Urged By Senator

(From Times News Services)

Senator David Croll called Wednesday for a western boycott of the Suez Canal.

The Senate's only Jewish member also said in the Upper House that the time for a showdown with President Nasser of Egypt is long overdue.

Senator Croll said the great error of the West in the Israeli-Arab dispute was that Nasser was treated as an innocent victim of aggression. But the world now knew Egypt was the aggressor.

"It is time we began to talk of sanctions against Egypt, boycotting the canal and providing alternative routes to the Suez. Appeasing Nasser won't pay off. We shall receive only the apaiser's reward—the bitter taste of humiliation."

"Israel expelled Egypt from the Suez Canal for fuel which has restored Egypt to her former position. What irony: what homes and powers our industry!"

Liberals Defeat Motions on CBC

The Liberal majority beat down three Opposition attempts to have the government produce copies of correspondence between cabinet ministers and officers of the CBC.

Three motions for tabling of the correspondence, two by Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre) and one by Davie Fulton (PC-Kamloops), were defeated by votes of 114 to 73, 113 to 71, and 112 to 70.

On the first division Prime Minister St. Laurent abstained from voting, apparently because the motion involved him personally.

It called for production of copies of letters Mr. St. Laurent has said he wrote to CBC chairman A. D. Dunton to protest radio commentaries on Canadian foreign policy carried by the CBC Oct. 11 and 12.

Before the voting, the CCF asked each of Mr. St. Laurent's cabinet colleagues individually whether they had made representations to the CBC at anytime concerning any radio or television broadcast or any proposed to be broadcast by the CBC.

Market Boards to Get Taxing Powers

Canadian farmers, organized under provincial marketing boards, may soon have the unique power of forcing buyers of their products to pay a specific tax or fee to help equalize producer earnings.

History-making legislation, to grant the boards this federal direct taxing power, was introduced by the government and there were indications it would get swift passage.

The legislation, shaped as amendments to the Agricultural Products Marketing Act, was the government's answer to the ruling of the Supreme Court of Canada, that the boards were loaded with legal weaknesses.

In some ways, too, the legislation, given first reading supported amendments made by Ontario in provincial marketing legislation.

As requested by Ontario, it placed the onus of proof not on the prosecution but on the accused, who may be the farmer or buyer who fails to comply with board regulations.

If a farmer engages in producing a product which is regulated by the provincial board and refuses to participate in board operations, he must be able to prove that his own operations came outside the board's jurisdiction—or else be found guilty of breaking the law.

CONFICTING EVIDENCE AT DR. ADAMS TRIAL

Nothing 'Sinister' in Shots Doctor Tells Old Bailey Jury

LONDON (AP) — A medical expert testifying for Dr. John Bodkin Adams told a jury today he could not detect anything "sinister" in the drug injections given the 81-year-old woman Adams is accused of murdering.

Dr. John Bishop Harman, specialist at London's St. Thomas' Hospital, said he had administered morphine and heroin to a patient and did not regard it as dangerous to combine the two.

The prosecution's narcotics expert, Dr. Arthur Douthwaite, condemned the mixture of drugs used by the 58-year-old Adams, charged with killing Mrs. Edith Alice Morrell, who died in November, 1950, two years after suffering a stroke.

While Dr. Douthwaite had criticized giving heroin to persons over 70, Dr. Harman said: "In my opinion there is no reason why heroin should not be given to elderly people."

Dr. Adams does not intend to take the stand himself and is staking his hopes for acquittal on the conflicting medical testimony of the experts.

NOT ASTONISHED

Geoffrey Lawrence, chief defense lawyer, told Dr. Harman that the prosecution expert expressed "astonishment" Adams had left instructions with nurses to give heroin if needed to keep Mrs. Morrell quiet.

"I am not astonished at all," replied Dr. Harman. "I frequently do that myself. A nurse knows what I want and is expected to detect the symptoms."

During 1955 cancer of the lung accounted for 1504 male deaths and only 307 female deaths. No one has been able to completely explain the reason for this difference.

U.K. Workers Back at Work

LONDON (Reuters) — Nearly 2,000,000 strikers returned to work today to end Britain's biggest industrial shutdown in 30 years.

A government court of inquiry started in earnest this morning, after an 18-minute procedural meeting Wednesday, to solve the first of the major disputes—a wage claim by 200,000 repair and construction workers who went on strike in the shipyards 18 days ago.

Later, the same court of inquiry will have to consider similar claims by some 3,000,000 factory workers.

The findings of the court are not binding.

The unions asked a 10-percent wage increase at the start of both strikes.

After a series of prolonged talks on the wages issue with employers, the unions decided last Tuesday to call off both strikes, pending results of the court of inquiry.

Union committees held stormy meetings all over the country Wednesday protesting at their leaders' decision to order them back to work.

Eden Reaches Suva En Route to B.C.

SUVA, Fiji Islands (Reuters) — Sir Anthony Eden arrived here by plane today on his way to the United States for medical consultations. He will remain in the Fiji Islands overnight before resuming his flight to Vancouver from New Zealand.

The former British prime minister apparently is suffering a recurrence of his old bile duct ailment. But he told reporters at the Auckland airport that he and Lady Eden plan to return to New Zealand after their trip.

Sidney Holland was on hand to say goodbye when Eden left Auckland. Mr. Holland requested that the reporters not bother Eden with questions.

A New Zealand Air Force flying boat carried the Edens from Auckland to Suva.

They will board a Trans-Pacific airliner due in Van-

So Much in the Balance

AMID ALL THE COMPLICATIONS of the Suez settlement one point at least seems clear: Egypt is going to retain control of the Canal pretty much on its own terms.

The protests of last fall, the fighting of last winter, appear to have led us back to the point from which we departed. Egypt has ownership of the waterway, now almost completely reopened for business. It has control of the canal's administration with little prospect that it can be forced into relinquishing any part of it to international authority. It has control of the receipts from canal traffic, on a COD basis. And there appears to be little that Britain, France or other canal users can do about it.

Negotiation, diplomatic moves and formation of the canal users association earlier failed to dislodge President Nasser from his position. Later, military action was equally ineffective—in the face of worldwide moral disapproval—in forcing the issue.

The only "unfinished business" in regard to the canal appears to be its availability to Israeli shipping. That is still a point on which there is great foginess. Israel claims the right to use the canal, and threatens to send a trial ship to test its claims. Refusal of passage, Israel says, will mean war.

President Nasser claims that a state of war already exists between the two countries, and for this reason he has a legal right to deny passage to Israeli ships. The United States, while urging Suez passage for Israel's ships, refrains from going farther than that. The "assumptions" of support on which Israel withdrew from Egyptian territory, says President Eisenhower, apply only to passage of the Gulf of Aqaba and an end to Egyptian frontier raids.

Where do we go from here? On the one hand there is still the very real danger that a frustrated Israel will resort again to force. On the other, there is an Egyptian suggestion that availability of the canal to Israel could become a matter for decision of the International Court of Justice.

One thing is sure. Colonel Nasser will exploit his advantageous position to the full. Any concession on his part will be obtained only at the expense of a hard bargain. It would not be reasonable to expect otherwise.

At the same time, he walks a slippery path. Although the Egyptian leader has made it very plain

Mr. Ralph Chetwynd

THIS DEATH OF BRITISH Columbia's minister of agriculture, Mr. Ralph Chetwynd has deeply touched people of this province far beyond the circle of his intimate friends.

As a public figure, one of the original members of the Social Credit cabinet and highly regarded citizen of the Interior, he had won for himself genuine respect and affection from those who came into contact with him.

Mr. Chetwynd presented to the

Moran's Special Pleader

SPEAKING TO A LOCAL SERVICE club this week, Dr. H. V. Warren, professor of geology and geography at the University of British Columbia, has repeated his propaganda on fish and power in the Fraser.

In substance, Dr. Warren says the province can have both. He states that construction of a high dam at Moran on the Fraser—the hydro prize of the continent if it could be gained—would affect only 6 or 7 per cent of British Columbia's salmon industry, "and" would not as you would gather, be a case of the whole industry being threatened."

What do Dr. Warren's percentage figures mean?

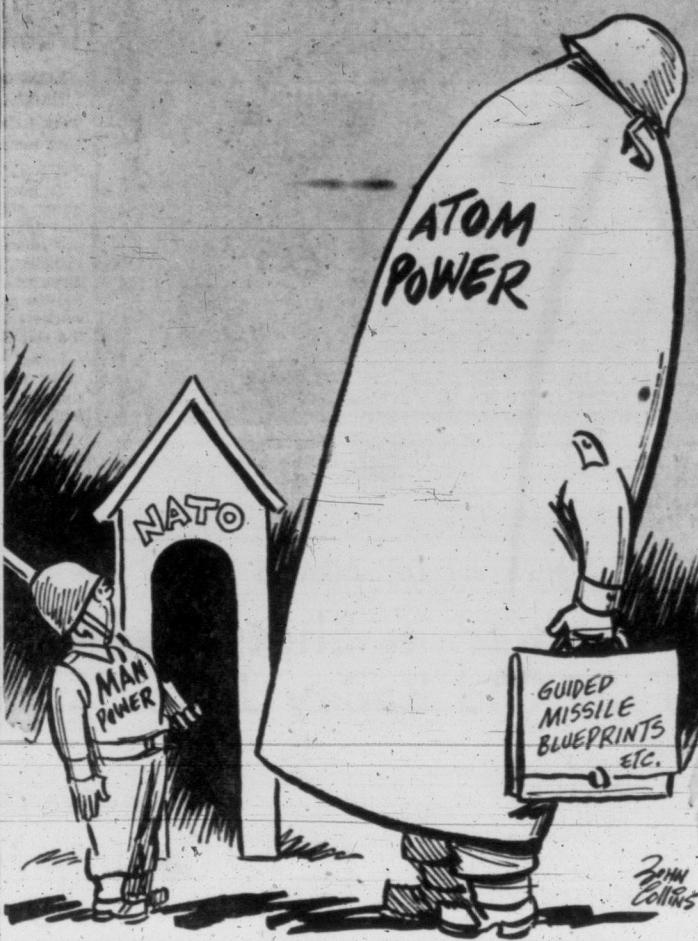

Fisheries authorities point out that the Fraser is the last great salmon river in the world. It is the significant source of sockeye, the important commercial salmon.

Prior to the Hell's Gate slide 60 per cent of the sockeye using the Fraser spawned in grounds upriver from Moran rapids. Since the fishways were installed, those runs have been coming back. During the last three years—because of variations in the different runs—fish from above Moran have kept the industry in business.

If a high dam at Moran destroyed those runs—and fisheries authorities are sure it would—the industry could not survive.

Were it possible to develop the Fraser for both fish and power, obviously hydro development would proceed there, because it would pro-

Smoke in the Spring

MOST Canadians are forgetting how to light a fire now-a-days, unless they wish to burn down a structure like the old Parliament Buildings in Victoria. Apart from house burning and lighting cigarettes, we have lost our old cunning with fire. Yet in the spring, when a countryman faces the winter's accumulated debris, fire is an essential weapon and one of the oldest in the land—the weapon which our grandfathers used to clear a good chunk of the continent. It is essential, anyway, to any man who owns even a few acres of inferior forest and a summer camp therein; and not an easy weapon to master, especially if one is married.

"If we succeed, then we must build on that success (so that on a future occasion) we can avoid the hasty improvisation of last autumn."

A great deal today thus depends on Israel's strength, Egypt's fear and the conduct of a handful of soldiers from various countries who in the sands of Gaza are leaving footprints which may well guide us to greater future international security.

As Canada's External Affairs Minister says in an article published this week: "If we fail in this a damaging blow—perhaps a fatal one—will be dealt to the whole concept of supervising the peace and avoiding hostilities through the U.N. Assembly."

"If we succeed, then we must build on that success (so that on a future occasion) we can avoid the hasty improvisation of last autumn."

A WOMAN knows nothing about fire.

A man carefully piles up in the dry summer the brush of his husbandry, the by-products of his woodpile, and prepares to burn them safely in wet weather. Invariably when he returns to the woods in the spring and faces his neat heap of tree branches he finds them overloaded with the scurings of the wife's kitchen.

Into a mass of material difficult to light at best after the winter's rain, she has introduced a collection of newspapers, discarded detective stories, old mattresses, worn-out millinery and female foundation garments that simply will not burn.

To a journalist, I suppose, it should be gratifying to note that when newspapers or magazines are soaked by rain they become immortal.

A dry newspaper may be used to wrap garbage (even journalism has its uses) and is usually destroyed, with all its content of ideas, every day. A wet newspaper is virtually a classic which no amount of heat can touch; and if you pile enough newspapers and other refuse on a perfectly good bonfire only a skilled burner can hope to demolish it.

SOMEHOW it must be done before the dry days come again, and in making his spring fire a man re-lives a fragment of our racial experience. In miniature he is facing the problem of the old-timers who first cleared the land and built on it.

A bonfire in the spring woods contains much more than branches and household junk heaped there by an ignorant housewife. It contains a large part of our national history, and more than that. It contains also the history of the forest.

DENNIS THE MENACE

Hutchison

The flames grasp the substance called wood and instantly re-convert them into the chemicals which the tree used to make wood. Then, as if to recapitulate for a brief moment all that long process of growth, the bonfire utters at the point of death all the sounds of the forest's life.

THE groan of wind through the winter treetops is there, the crackle of summer, the hum of insects and the chirp of birds—the whole symphony of the woods, though no one but the experienced incendiary is likely to hear it. The woodsman pauses in his labor and listens to a medley of sounds beyond the reach of the urban ear. He smells an old perfume supplied free and much better than any offered for $25 an ounce in the stores. And after a day with his bonfire he returns home pungently kippered like a herring.

To burn a sudden pile of wood, and the housewife's incombinables, requires a skill and experience too complicated to be discussed here. Besides, no one is interested in fire any more unless a house is burning down.

SPRING burning is hard physical work, too, and, like marriage, not to be undertaken lightly or ill-advisedly. But I know of nothing more satisfactory than the housekeeping of a wood lot, the thrifty use of every possible stick in the camp stove and the quick disposal of the remainder in a fire outdoors when a man is alone with no fire department to bother him and no wife to hear him curse her contributions to the funeral pyre.

Once the bonfire has passed the point of crisis and is really burning hot enough to consume everything else, however wet, a man may pause and examine the old newspapers rendered indestructible by the winter rain.

Warmed and kippered, he may sit on a mossy rock and read, with a kind of pleasant melancholy, the optimistic utterances of our statesmen a year ago, the assurance that the world has entered a period of peace and co-existence, the satisfactory news that the Suez problem is well off the way to settlement, the comforting predictions of Mr. Dulles and the confident posture of Sir Anthony Eden.

A year has passed but, for all the news in the papers, nothing much has happened. The forest is unchanged except for a few windfalls. The bonfire remains as men knew it here a century ago, except for the addition of some new-fashioned millinery and foundation garments. The bonfire man himself is practically undestructible, preserved like a kipper by clean woodsmoke.

Mother Love Unbounded

In Britain, despite the Government's determination to persist with its atom and H-bomb tests there is growing opposition to the policy, not only from leftist sections but on the part of the general public, where articulate all such protests against the risk of radioactive contamination of the atmosphere, the inevitable answer is that national interests, security, demand that the tests continue.

It is true that as yet there is no conclusive evidence of injury to the human species as a whole through increased radioactivity. But from scientific sources more and more warnings are being issued as to the very grave danger of permanent injury to future generations.

In fact, sectional contamination on land and water has already taken place and more is planned, as in the Pacific, where Japanese protests against tests are bypassed with nice words. In order to prepare for enemies we risk losing our friends. But no argument against the plan, even from recognized authorities, is listened to. Only purely political reasons count.

For example: Some time ago one of Britain's foremost atomic scientists and atomic advisers, the late Professor Soddy, could only get his letter of protest published in two leading newspapers. The writer saw his letter in one of those papers.

In view of the present determination to continue the tests for the nation's security regardless of what happens to the citizens in it, because of those tests, one could now quote, with atomic emphasis, Anatole France's original statement:

"La Patrie est like a mother who devours her own children in order that they may not be deprived of a mother." JOHN MCNAUGHTON.

One Hanged, One Given 'Life'

I was deeply distressed, as I am sure most British Columbians interested in the administration of justice in British Columbia were, to read in the paper that Gordon had been hanged and that his co-accused Carey, had been given a life sentence.

These two men were tried for the murder of Constable Sinclair in Vancouver, in 1956. They were convicted by a jury, without any recommendation for mercy, and sentenced by the Honorable Mr. Justice A. M. Manson, the senior Judge of the Supreme Court of British Columbia, to be hanged. After various appeals were taken the verdict of the jury and the sentence of the learned trial judge were confirmed.

It would appear, as a consequence of certain information given on behalf of Mr. Carey, certain investigations were made by the Remissions Branch. The purpose of the investigations was to ascertain whether Mr. Carey was an informer (paid by the RCMP).

If he, Carey, was an informer, it is not reasonable to assume that this man Carey would have rendered assistance to this unfortunate officer, who was shot in the back, and if he was afraid of his friend, Mr. Gordon, report the matter to the police immediately after leaving his friend?

This case is important in the administration of justice, of which we in British Columbia are justly proud, and I hope the Honorable Minister of Justice will make a report to the House forthwith.

In the meantime it will give all of us somber thought.

JAMES J. PROUDFOOT.

The Pendulum Swings

The findings of a team of editors of U.S. News and World Report (March 15th issue) are enlightening and interesting.

Across the nation, America's public schools are now heading back to the 1950s. Top ranking educators, once again, are emphasizing the value, for every child, of strict grounding in the fundamentals of reading, writing and arithmetic. High schools are beginning to stiffen their standards—especially for students going on to college. The hickory stick is being eyed with a new respect in places where student disorders are a problem.

Now, in almost every community, the results of the switch, years ago, to so-called progressive education are being seriously reappraised, scholastic requirements are becoming stiffer. So is discipline. All over the country there is a demand for higher standards in the classroom.

Now instead of being permitted to shop around, almost at will, for courses of their own choosing, about half of their program must consist of prescribed academic courses in English, mathematics, social studies and science.

Watered-down education of everybody is losing ground. Senior and junior high schools separate students according to academic ability. Elementary schools are also taking up the idea. Some of the older methods of reading instruction have been brought back with more response from the children. Mass education to all even up to 18 years, in public schools is being discouraged unless the pupil can and will learn.

We in Canada have tended to follow the progressive ideas, many personnel managers have found that applicants out of our colleges and universities cannot write and spell as they should. A hard second look at our methods should be in order.

FROM WASHINGTON

Mr. Dulles at the Helm

EXHIBIT A in the forthcoming inquiry into American policy in the Middle East ought to be a new book about Secretary of State John Foster Dulles by John Robinson, Beal of Time, magazine. The book contains a long and passionate defence of the Dulles Middle Eastern policies, and according to the author it "benefits from personal interviews with (Dulles) which have provided insight into his official actions." In short, it is a kind of White Paper, or lawyer's brief, for the Dulles policies, based on facts and interpretations supplied in large part by Dulles himself.

As such it is a fascinating document. A previous report has described how Beal reveals that Dulles consciously brought on the Middle Eastern crisis by withdrawing the American offer to aid in building the Aswan Dam in the most brutal and insulting way possible.

The Dulles method prevailed because he "wielded the influence of the United States so vigorously that fighting was stopped within a week. This was 'waging peace' with genuine skill."

Thus the end result of the Dulles-forced Middle Eastern showdown was a big net plus for the United States. It created "a completely new understanding of motives in 'neutral' parts of the world which added immensely to the stature of the United States as moral leader in the fight for peace."

Hopeful Version

This is a remarkably hopeful version of the crisis, but there appear to be a couple of gaps in it.

In the first place, the British decision to join the "plot" may have been an act of folly, but it was not an act of insanity. The British became convinced, with reason, that the Dulles policy, however "moral" and "consistent and purposeful," would not prevent the violently hostile Nasser from gaining total control of the canal—a prospect they regarded, also with reason, as intolerable.

The intolerable prospect is now a reality. From here on out, the Western Europeans will have to get used to the unhappy feeling of Nasser's knife at their economic throats.

If Nasser has been shown "in what way he was misguided," he gives no signs of it. Indeed, from his point of view, his policy has not been misguided at all, but triumphantly successful.

Key Question

Moreover, the Beal brief for Dulles leaves the real key question unanswered. Why was the "influence of the United States" wielded in such a way that Nasser was relieved of all pressure from Britain, France, and Israel, while at the same time no American influence of any

The Garden City

(Reprinted by Request)
THIS column strikes me as having been very worthy and dull of late. So let's have a little fun today. Let's consider the subject of manure.

It seems to be a good Victorian subject. Or so says a woman from Edmonton, who insists that on her annual pilgrimage to our city, she invariably finds herself at a tea party where everyone is talking manure for gardens.

It's true, I guess. I know that since I heard this story I've thought of dozens of people who grow quite lyrical at the mention of manure. Their eyes sparkle.

Their voices take on a keener tone. They lean forward in their chairs and interrupt and contradict each other without any thought of manners.

Take, for instance, the woman who talked for twenty minutes about turkey droppings. "Turkey for me," she said, quite fiercely. "I swear by turkey. A well-filled sack from the turkey farm is the nicest present I could have."

And it seems that she visits friends who have a turkey farm, and comes home with a precious sack tucked into the trunk of her car. (Think what a road check would reveal of Victorian habits!)

(And I must confess that I was quite absorbed by her description of the growth in the place where her friends bury turkey feathers after plucking. "Tremendous growth," she said. "The nitrogen, you know.")

Since I became manure-conscious, I've thought of the Saanich resident, a highly-educated man, whose idea of Heaven is to put on his oldest clothes, and take a bucket to a farmer neighbor so he can rootle round in the messy purloins of the barn.

Eyeglasses on a Small Child

Dr. Walter C. Alvarez is Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation.

I was just reading an excellent article on the vision of the pre-school child, written by Dr. Cecil W. Lepard and published in The Sight Saving Review of the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness. Dr. Lepard comments on a number of mistaken ideas that many lay persons have, such as that it is unusual to start wearing glasses because you will become dependent on them. That's about as sensible as saying that if a man has lost a leg he shouldn't wear an artificial one because he will love it so that he won't ever part with it.

As Dr. Lepard says, many small children greatly need glasses if only so that they won't become cross-eyed. People's eyes cross or turn out usually because the vision in one eye is so different from that of the other that the images from the two eyes cannot be fused in the brain. When the two images can't be fused, the brain has to learn to disregard one of them, and when this happens the eye with the disregarded image often develops a squint, and perhaps turns in to look at the child's nose.

Also, many children are born with a slight imbalance of the muscles which produce the movements of the eyes. Sometimes this is not enough to cause a constant squint. A strong contraction of one or other of the muscles of the eyes keeps the child from getting a squint. Occasionally, this constant pulling on the muscles gives the child headaches. Sometimes such a muscular imbalance can be helped by exercises, but in many cases it can be helped best by grinding one or more prisms into the person's glasses. These prisms bend the rays of light so that the muscles do not have to pull so hard in order to keep the eyes focused on an object. One reason for putting glasses on a small child is that they may save the sight of a poorly-made eye. If the vision in one eye of a child is bad enough from birth,

I've thought of the man who swears by horse manure.

"I dug a trench," he said, "and lined it with horse manure, and put the potatoes right into it. My father-in-law said they'd be scabby. They were wonderful. Just wonderful. Never had such a crop in my life."

I've thought of a luncheon of intelligent middle-aged women where the conversation suddenly shifted from Gruber and Mozart to gardens and manure.

I've thought of a man who looked as if he'd inherited a fortune as he watched a load of cow manure being dumped for his garden.

I've thought of the farmer who wouldn't sell a load of manure no matter what you paid him.

"What comes out of my land goes back into it," he says, and no amount of pleading will soften his dedicated heart.

I've thought with pity of the heretic who's bored by talk about manure, and refers to gardening as "this perpetual irritation of the earth."

I've thought with scorn of the chumps who want to take the tally-hos off our streets because you know what is an affront to their pernickety little souls.

"I can't think what the town is coming to," a sweet-faced Victorian lady said, quite pink with protest. "Why, this summer I saw a man run out with a bucket and a shovel after the tally-ho had passed along his street. He looked pleased as Punch. And I don't wonder. The lucky chap!"

Queer, dear Victoria. What fun Ruth Draper might have had with some of us.

Is there any other city with such a magnificent sense of values?

But it took the story of the woman from Edmonton to show me how sane and sensible we are.

Definitely down to earth!

Over-Kindness Hits 4 Popular Plants

Petunias, nasturtiums, calendulas, and geraniums will be used extensively in garden and window-box plantings this year.

These plants are favorites with gardeners because they give a mass of color throughout their season without demanding a lot of attention.

There are times when these four subjects prove disappointing, as many gardeners discovered last year. The plants produced quantities of foliage at the expense of flowers, the latter appearing as an after-thought near the end of the season.

DUNCAN MURDER LISTED

Appeal Court Opens Sittings Here April 9

A murder appeal and an appeal of a Victoria bank robber against a sentence of 20 years in the penitentiary, head the list of cases to be heard at the spring session of the B.C. Court of Appeal.

The Court of Appeal will open at the courthouse here on April 9 with an agenda of 38 criminal appeals.

Thomas Sidney Symes, 31-year-old Duncan logger, will appeal his murder conviction arising from the rifle-slaying of Paul Richard, Powling, 25, of Duncan, on New Year's Day.

He was sentenced to be hanged May 14, following conviction by an Assize Court jury in Nanaimo.

Indonesians Study Administration Techniques Here

Three Indonesian civil servants studying Canadian administration and education techniques are in Victoria this week.

R. Soetono, A. M. Joesoef and Mohd Umar began their cross-country tour in Ottawa last September. After a 12-week course at Carleton College, they spent the next two months in various departments of the federal government.

After another month in Vancouver studying municipal government, they moved to Victoria to observe provincial officials in action.

The visitors form one of three teams of Indonesian government workers now in Canada.

All speak good English, which is a compulsory subject in their schools.

A full report of their findings will be submitted to the National Planning Council of Indonesia on their return.

SCREWBALL WORLD

Danger! Explosives! Keep Cool

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A pair of "falsies" were blamed for a fire which did more than $4,000 damage at a laundry and dry cleaning plant. One of the plant's owners said the materials of which the articles are made hold heat and can cause an explosion if kept in an unventilated place.

MAYWOOD, N.J. (AP) — Carl Rombough, 49, was involved in an auto accident here and promptly proceeded to treat the victim. The victim was a tree that Rombough told police he hit. Rombough, who was not injured, is a tree surgeon.

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A downtown store turned in a bad cheque, apparently passed by someone who takes his pen names from the telephone directory.

The cheque was signed John F. Dwyer, attorney-at-law.

If the forger is caught, he will have a chance to meet John F. Dwyer. He is the county district attorney.

LONDON (CP) — Production will start in 10 days on a British version of the Isetta bubble car, claimed to be the world's cheapest four-wheeler.

The first 1,000 models produced will be shipped to Canada. The bubble car, which opens in front, costs £350 17s 6d (about $910) in Britain.

BETTOLA, Italy (Reuters) — The public clocks of Bettola are not striking the hour because the town's two clock winders are on strike.

Gaetano Agnelli and Luigi Milza are paid 5,000 lire ($8 a year) to wind the clocks in the medieval towers of St. John's and St. Bernardinus. They also ring the bells at noon and at the opening and closing of school.

They first asked a raise to 36,000 lire ($8 a year) but said they would settle for 10,000 lire ($16) now with more later.

The town council balked at the demand and said it would discuss the "clock strike" later.

Actress Betsy Blair Divorces Gene Kelly

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The 16-year marriage of dancer Gene Kelly and actress Betsy Blair ended Wednesday as she was granted a divorce on grounds of mental cruelty. The decree was said to involve a property settlement of $500,000.

MENZIES' PREMERSHIP SETS RECORD

CANBERRA (AP)—Robert G. Menzies Wednesday set a record of 2,633 consecutive days as Prime Minister of Australia. That is one day longer than the late William M. Hughes, who had an unbroken term from November 27, 1915, until February 9, 1923. Menzies became prime minister for the second time on December 19, 1949. He was also prime minister for 856 days until August 9, 1941.

INTO YOUR
G-E RANGE

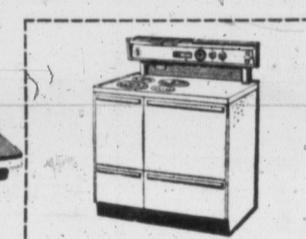

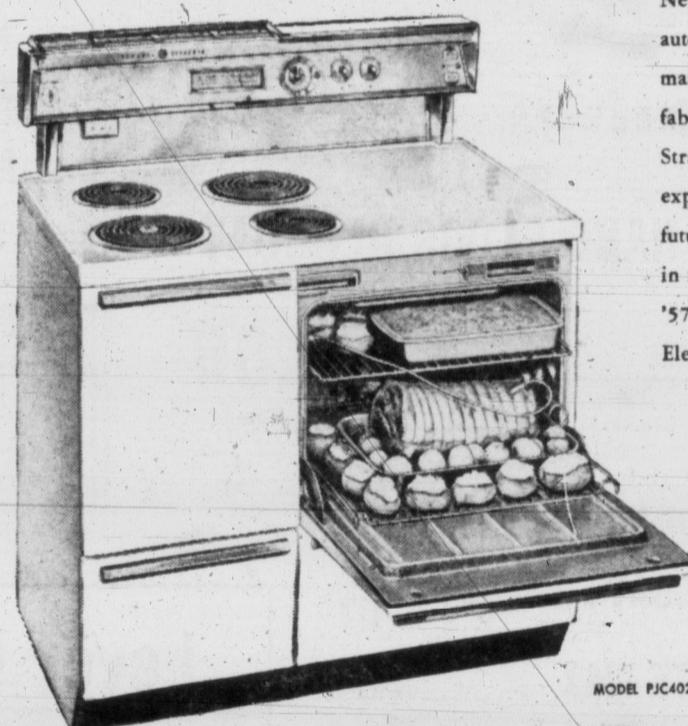

GENERAL ELECTRIC

brings "automation" to the kitchen . . .

the all-automatic Stratoliner Range

with Keyboard Controls

Never before has an electric range offered such a galaxy of automatic features. From the sweeping suspension of its master keyboard to each Hi-Speed Calrod element, to the fabulous master oven and charcoal-type broiler, the new G-E Stratoliner is a masterpiece of automation. You're in for a new experience in cooking convenience. This is the look of the future in ranges — the console look — a dramatic new concept in functional beauty. It's in the entire line of G-E Ranges for '57, in every price bracket. Further proof, that at General Electric, "Progress is our most important product".

MODEL PJC402

MASTER KEYBOARD CONTROL PANEL
Piano-key pushbuttons with Tel-A-Cook lights . . . safely removed from children's reach. 5 exact heats for each surface unit. Oven timer turns on and off automatically. Minute timer dial for surface cooking.

AUTOMATIC CALROD AND GRIDDLE
The new G-E Calrod unit is the fastest of all electric elements. Boil, fry, simmer, and grill automatically. Automatic element adjusts to two sizes — 6 or 8 inches. Automatic Griddle is wonderful for pancakes, sausages, all grilled foods.

OVEN AND MEAT THERMOMETER
You can cook a meal for 24 people at the same time. 10% more usable shelf space than most standard ovens. Charcoal-type focused heat broiler. Meat thermometer assures a perfectly cooked roast every time.

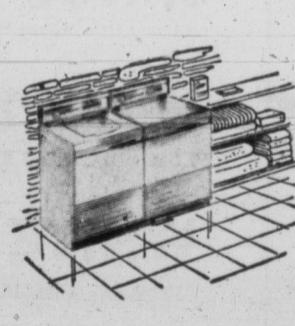

NEW STRAIGHT-LINE DESIGN
It's the dream-kitchen look in ranges, the sleek console look. Deluxe chrome handles on storage doors and oven door. New compact straight-line design means unit can be installed flush against walls either side or back, or completely built in.

MIX-OR-MATCH COLORS
Available in white, turquoise, petal pink and canary yellow.

WHAT'S THE SCORE?
BY Denny Boyd

I have been wallowing through the pages of that urban publication, Sports Illustrated, attempting to channel the sea of golf information donated kindly by Ben Hogan.

I had been attracted by the preview of Ben's instructional series. Prior to the first installment, the magazine announced that Hogan had succeeded in rendering the game to four fundamentals, which he had isolated and with which any golfer in full command of his faculties and fingers could shoot golf in the score.

Here, I thought, was an easy end to those waspish hours spent on the back nine at Uplands, cursing foul and heapings abuse on a small white ball that refused to be disciplined.

In four easy lessons, I thought, I will be a golfer . . .

The first of the four isolated fundamentals dealt with the grip.

It was a fine little story. Only 12 pages long and garnished with 21 illustrations, all explaining how to take the club out of the bag and wrap the hands around it. Really fundamental stuff.

I read that one in the bathtub and the water was long cold before I had absorbed one-tenth of the information.

However, I did come to the clattering realization that I knew not a confounded thing about holding a golf stick. I had been holding the club like a bludgeon, instead of the gentle shaft that Hogan makes it.

Ben's Theories Fall With Crash

I set about to reconstruct my grip. It was a monstrous task. But I began to see daylight.

And then Bill McColl came along.

Bill, the best practicing golfer on Vancouver Island right now, tore down all those precepts and established a few of his own.

You see, McColl does criminal things with all the rules of playing golf.

Brace yourself for this—he holds a golf club like a baseball bat!

When Bill hoists himself up on the tee, he grabs his golf club in a two-handed grip as if he was batting fourth with the bases loaded.

And I don't have to tell you how many home runs he hits. Bill says, "First time I ever held a club in my hands when I was just a kid, I liked the way it felt and I was holding it in a baseball grip."

"Later, I tried the overlap grip and the interlocking grip, but nothing felt as comfortable as the good old two-hander."

Further research brought to light the fact that Bob Morrison and Jimmy Robertson also崇拜 their clubs like Stan Musial.

McColl, Morrison and Robertson—all former city champs and all former Willington coppers—are all pooh-poohers of micrometer placing of the thumbs and pinkies.

Why Sneak Up on Long Putts?

There is another kicked-about rule-in golf that when you putt, you aim for a three-foot circle around the hole. "Nonsense," says McColl.

"When you have a 15-footer, go for the hole. If you try to sneak up on the hole, you may leave yourself another tough putt. You have to get the ball in the cup sooner or later, why fool around aiming anywhere but right at your target?"

McColl's theory appears to work in practice if you believe his opponents.

Many a disgruntled golfer, after a round with the dapper Colwood ace, has been heard to say, "That — McColl. When he misses a 20-footer he isn't just mad . . . he's surprised. He is perfectly convinced that every putt he strokes is going in. I would give a year's wages for that kind of confidence."

This is the man who won the medal in the qualifying round of the Times Open last Sunday, putting with care-free abandon and holding his club as if he was swinging for the centre-field fence instead of a green.

Anyone want to buy several back issues of Sports Illustrated?

GAME CLUB WORK BEE

Has Spring Sprung? Sportsmen Say Yes

Spring officially arrives for the Victoria Fish and Game Protective Association this weekend as members usher in a new outdoor season with a full schedule of activities.

Starting things off Saturday morning will be a class in spin-casting and fly-casting at the yacht pool on Dallas Road, under direction of George Gilbert. Open to all anglers, both youngsters and adults, the classes will be held each Saturday from June 29. The three-hour sessions start at 9 and will also include instruction in knot-tying.

Members, who will hold a dance at their Goldstream clubhouse Saturday night, will be out at the clubhouse at 10:30. Sunday morning with a work party for a painting bee. Sunday afternoon, the first of the season's trap shoots will be held. It will be a practice session, starting at 1:30, and is open to all shotgun enthusiasts.

Scheduled at the clubhouse Monday evening is a general meeting, which will deal mainly with the VFFGA's recommendations.

HOME COURSE FINAL MAY NOT BE EXPLOITED

Pickings Slim for Uplands Players

Only twice since the event started in 1950 has the Daily Times' Vancouver Island Match Play Open golf championship been won by a golfer playing the final round over his home course.

Bill McColl, medalist in this year's Open with a par 72 at Gorge Vale last Sunday, performed the feat in the 1955 final when he trimmed Hugh Morrison at the Colwood club. Bob Morrison trimmed Bob Fleming at Uplands for a home-course triumph in 1953.

Uplands will again be hosting the 36-hole tourney final on May 5, but the chances of another home-course victory appear mighty slim.

Uplands stars tumbled like leaves in an October gale during the qualifying round with the result that only Gordie Pellow, Fred Ranson and Alan Reside will go to the

Brass Moans Blues

NHL Semis Resume; Phil Most Gloomy

(From AP and UP Reports)

Only Milt Schmidt of Boston Bruins was out of tune this morning as the brass section of rival National Hockey League clubs were singing the "playoff blues" while awaiting tonight's fifth games in the best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final playdowns.

Jack Adams, whose Detroit Red Wings trail Schmidt's Bruins, 3-1; Phil Watson, the talented moaner who coaches New York Rangers, and even Toe Blake, pilot of Montreal Canadiens, who will carry at 3-1 lead into Montreal Forum to against the Broadway Blues, were giving out with harmonious groans.

Schmidt, as cautious with words as his team is free with crunching body checks, agrees the league-champion Wings appear to be cracking under pressure but wouldn't predict the underdog Bruins will apply the crusher at Detroit tonight.

"We're not considering the finals," he said. "We still have a series to play with Detroit."

After Sunday's narrow 4-3 loss and the 2-0 whitewashing Tuesday, the Wings could be expected to be drooping. But coach Jim Skinner flatly forecloses a victory tonight. "We're going back to Boston for a sixth game Sunday," he said. But didn't appear optimistic beyond that point.

NO BREAKS

"The puck just isn't bouncing for us. We haven't been getting the breaks and the team hasn't been shooting enough. Then, when they have been shooting, they've been wide or over the net," he moaned.

"All we need is a break," manager Adams chimed in. "If we can get one tonight, we could win the whole thing."

As expected, the lowest chords are coming from the New York camp, where Watson was loudly reviewing what had been wrong and came up with the prescribed victory formula for his Rangers.

"We have to make up our minds not to lose a period," he said, while reflecting on Tuesday's 3-1 loss after outplaying the Canvens for two periods.

"We were passing right on the Canadiens' sticks in the third period. What happened? Bang. They scored three goals. We gave the game away. We beat ourselves."

Watson said that there were so many, wrong things being done that "even our captain was doing them wrong."

As an after-thought, he added: "He won't be captain next year." (Defenceman Harry Howell is the Ranger captain.)

ANDY PRAISED

However, Watson had a good word for rugged Andy Hebeorn, former Victoria winger who scored the lone New York goal Tuesday and whose overtime tally gave Rangers the second game of the series.

"I told him he played the best game Tuesday he has played since I've had the club," said Watson.

Blake admits he is "feeling a lot better" after Tuesday's win, but is touchy at any suggestion that his Canvens are a shoo-in.

"Why do people think all we have to do to win is go through the motions?" asked Blake. "If the Rangers play the same style of defence they showed Tuesday, you can't tell what will happen."

INTERNATIONAL MATCH

AMSTERDAM (AP)—West Germany defeated The Netherlands, 2-1, Wednesday in an international soccer match watched by 64,000 fans in Olympic Stadium.

MANILA—Masakatsu Otuka, 220, Japan, outpointed Little Cesar, 222, Philippines, 10. MILAN—Duilio Lot, 1884, Italy, stopped Kari Heine Rick, 184, Germany, 10.

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Orlando Zalutsky, 19, Havana, outpointed Joey Lopes, 18, Sacramento, Cal., 10.

Meeting starts at 8 and will be addressed by Fred Marshall of Nanaimo, president of the Vancouver Island Affiliated Fish and Game Clubs. Two short films will also be shown.

Church League Champs Crowned

Barbara Shoemaker and Doug Robinson combined Monday night, in the Metropolitan Church badminton finals to defeat Jeanne van Schaik and Don Walker and win the Henry Birks Trophy.

In the ladies' doubles it was Helen Vallis and Lillian Robinson winning over Nora Wolfe and Ella Wright for the F. W. Francis Trophy while the men's doubles team of Trevor James and Doug Robinson took Jack Fournares and Harry Lawrie in two straight games in Olympic Stadium.

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Orlando Zalutsky, 19, Havana, outpointed Joey Lopes, 18, Sacramento, Cal., 10.

post in the first round of match play at Uplands Sunday.

Making the biggest Uplands-thumps as they skidded out of the running for the title won last year by Colwood's Laurie Kerr were Eric Hibberson, the only double winner of the Open, who came in with a nightmarish 88 last Sunday; Bob Morrison, who missed by one stroke with an 81, and former Uplands champ Frank Scroggs, also, one stroke out.

Victoria Golf Club hopes also dwindle in the qualifying test as only three Oak Bay divots squeezed into the championship division.

Assistant-pro Laurie Carroll three-putted several greens but still made it easily with a 75. George Bigelow was one stroke further back and Jim Barry played steadily to put together a pair of 39s for a 78.

REFUGEES SAY THANKS FOR SOCCER EQUIPMENT

A request printed on these pages for soccer equipment outfit two teams of Hungarian refugees met recently with a resounding "Thank You" from the refugee players.

The request received such gratifying response from the citizens of Victoria that Wednesday afternoon the clubs represented said the second of the two teams had enough equipment to outfit a side from 30 potential players.

The first team was supplied by donations of shirts and equipment by several teams in the Victoria leagues as well as private citizens.

GLITTERING RECORD EXTENDED

Eilers Close To Eighth Hoop Title

VANCOUVER (CP) — Unless Kitchener-Waterloo Elliotts do the unexpected, Vancouver Eilers will pack up their eighth straight Canadian senior A women's basketball championship tonight.

Eilers all but nailed down the few changes and it produced a record 106-105 win over Waterloo.

The Eilers were just too good for the Elliotts, who had been shooting par or just a little over during the last few days.

It was the 30th straight victory for the Vancouver quintet in Canadian playoffs since 1952. The team has only lost two games—but never a series—since it was organized in 1950. In its initial year it dropped one game to Saskatoon, the next year one to Edmonton. But it won the Canadian title both years.

And if Eilers win tonight, their record of eight Canadian senior titles will put them only one behind the all-time mark of nine straight set by Percy Page's Edmonton Grads in the 1930s.

Wednesday's game, played before 500 fans, was Eilers from start to finish. They led 17-3 at the end of the first quarter, 31-8 at the half and 40-16 at the three-quarter mark.

Gordon McDonald, Eilers coach, said he wasn't satisfied with Vancouver's defence in Tuesday's rather close contest. He made a shoo-in.

Why do people think all we have to do to win is go through the motions?" asked Blake. "If the Rangers play the same style of defence they showed Tuesday, you can't tell what will happen."

JUST CALLING BOSS AN OLD MEATHEAD

Complex Ted Never Dull

By WHITNEY MARTIN
NEW YORK (AP)—A few days ago a newspaper headline read: Williams Ready for start of Season. It was an understatement.

Ted Williams isn't just ready for the start of the season; he's in midseason form, physically, mentally, emotionally and loquaciously.

A verbal blast, aimed at the government, the U.S. Marine Corps, the late Senator Robert A. Taft and "phony politicians," possibly can be traced to his smoldering resentment over being called back for a second hitch as a Marine pilot at the age of 33, and personally we believe he has a right to be resentful over that.

But we think, Joe Cronin, the level-headed vice-president and general manager of Boston Red Sox, had the right perspective on the situation when he remarked that it was "just one marine talking to another marine."

Any soldier, or sailor, or marine will know that is. They air their gripes to one another, but just let an outsider start to put the rap on their particular branch of the service, and look out!

The big guy had the grace to apologize for his remarks concerning the Marine Corps, but we believe the rank and file of the corps knew he was not talking about them. He was blasting the brass, much as an employee of a business concern might refer to the boss as an old meathead, with no disloyalty to the firm intended.

Had practically any ball player except Ted Williams made the remarks they would have been laughed off, and never would have reached print.

But Williams is a big name in baseball, and a man who speaks his mind.

We are sorry Ted made the remarks. We like the big fellow, knowing the kinder side of his nature, and hate to see him embroiled in another controversy.

He can't be called diplomatic exactly. He is blunt and expresses his opinions honestly.

Anyway, it seems that a season wouldn't be complete without Ted breaking into the news with actions or remarks bringing criticism on his hand-some head.

He usually backs up his actions or statements, too, and it was unusual for him to apologize for his comment concerning the marines.

A complex fellow is Theodore Samuel Williams, but you can say this for him: He's never dull.

Harry Westwick Dies; Silver Seven Depleted

OTTAWA (CP)—Harry (Rat) Westwick, one of Canada's early hockey and lacrosse greats, died here Wednesday night. He was 81.

Father of Bill Westwick, sports editor of the Ottawa Journal, he played the now extinct forward position of rover on the Silver Seven during the three consecutive years it won the world hockey championship and the Stanley Cup—1903, 1904 and 1905.

He had been active up until a short time before his death although his left leg was amputated above the knee eight years ago as a result of injuries accumulated during his early years in sports. He walked with crutches.

Westwick was also a member of the Ottawa Capitals lacrosse team from 1896 to 1904. The team won three world championships during the period.

His death in hospital here, was unexpected. Only a few weeks ago he had been hobbling about in his Ottawa home on the same crutches he bought after he suffered a compound ankle fracture in a game at Montreal against the Wanderers in 1903.

IRON MEN

Westwick played his hockey in the days when starting players went the full 60 minutes and a substitute was made only if a player was severely injured. The game was much rougher than today but Westwick, one of the smallest players of his day, outlived most of his teammates and opponents.

Harry recently recalled one game against Wanderers in these words:

"No one was killed, but there was hardly one of the 14 players who at the end of the match couldn't show some bruise or cut."

Only a handful of Silver Seven players of the 1903-05 period are still alive. Westwick is the only survivor who was on the roster during all three years the Ottawa squad held the world and Stanley Cup championships.

Another survivor is left-wing H. L. Billy Gilmour, now of Montreal. Bouse Hutton, the team's 1903-04 goalie, still lives in Ottawa as does another goalie, Billy Hague. Davie Fine, who minded the "Sevens" nets in 1905, has lived in New York during the last 20 years. Still alive also are Jack Fraser and Fred White.

Beavers Win First From Flyers

FORT WILLIAM (CP)—Peter Gvora's goal at 3:37 in overtime gave Fort William Beavers a 6-5 victory over Spokane Flyers here Wednesday night, and their first win in the best-of-seven Western Canadian senior hockey final.

Flyers still lead the series, 2-1, in games after their 3-1 and 3-2 victories in the first two contests. Fourth game will be played here Friday night and the fifth Sunday afternoon.

Thirty-six seconds before he shone in the winning goal, Gvora had set up Lou Milani for the equalizer after Frank Kubasek of Spokane had scored the first overtime marker.

Gvora was top scorer for Beavers with two goals, with Milani, Bruce Corness, Henry (Pop) Backor and Alex Irving adding singles.

OUR 'PORKY' SIGNS FOR SEVENTH HITCH

CALGARY (CP)—Gordon "Porky" Brown, six-foot, 255-pound Victoria-born guard, has signed for his seventh season with Calgary Stampeders of the Western Interprovincial Football Union, it was announced today.

The veteran player, whose time with Stampeders is surpassed only by Harry Langford, came to Calgary in 1950 after playing for Vancouver College and St. Martin's College in Olympia, Wash.

He was rookie of the year in 1950 and was named to the all-star WIFU team in 1953.

Newk Hurls, Hits Brooklyn to Tie

By The Associated Press

The Brooklyn Dodgers, armed with big Don Newcombe, came off with nothing better than a 10-inning no-decision with Milwaukee Braves Wednesday as the two National League contenders battled to a 2-2 tie in the opening game of their northward road show.

Bobby Thomson and Johnny Logan smacked home runs off Newcombe, who had wallop one of his own off Ray Crone—a 25-year-old righthander who dealt the defending champs only four hits in nine innings. A single by Duke Snider, a walk and Gino Cimoli's single scored the other Dodger run.

Newcombe worked the first five innings with Clem Labine wrapping it up.

OTHER GAMES

Elsewhere, three fourth-inning home runs gave the Washington Senators a 4-3 victory over Cincinnati Redlegs; southpaw Harvey Haddix lined a three-run double as Philadelphia Phillies knocked off Boston Red Sox, 3-1; rookie Jim Landis delivered a two-run homer that helped Chicago

Two Mothers Save 8 Tots From Fire

(From CP Dispatches)

CHILLIWACK—Two mothers led their eight children to safety Wednesday when fire partially destroyed the home of Mr. and Mrs. Les Taylor, about three miles west of here. Four of the youngsters were members of the Taylor family, Judy, 5; Gordon, 4; Neil, 2, and Kathie, 15 months.

The other children—all girls—were the daughters of Mrs. Stanley Enns, who was visiting with Mrs. Taylor when the fire broke out.

The mothers shoved their children through a window but it wasn't until several minutes later they counted heads and discovered one of the young stars was missing.

The two women climbed back into the house and found five-year-old Judy Taylor sleeping peacefully in the front bedroom.

LIBERAL CANDIDATE

VANCOUVER—Lawyer Clare Skafeld was nominated Wednesday night to contest the Liberal seat in the Vancouver-Burrard federal riding for the next election. The seat has been vacant since last year when the Liberal member, Dr. J. Lorne MacDougall, died.

THIRD CAR DEATH

NEW WESTMINSTER—John Poulos, 30, died in hospital here Wednesday to become the third victim of a car crash at Haney Sunday. Also killed following the accident were Ivan John Sapek, 28, and Brian Vincent Nelson-Smith, 16.

McDONELL RITES

VANCOUVER—The funeral was held here Wednesday for Alan J. McDonell, 75, former MLA and industrialist, who died Sunday.

ETHICS CODE
LABOR'S AIM

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Vancouver labor council will seek a code of ethics, as a result of a debate Tuesday on U.S. investigations of labor racketeering.

The council's legislative committee recommended the code but rejected further action as "unnecessary and premature."

Legislative Chairman Jack Henderson said the group's constitution is sufficient protection against racketeering.

SHEEP BREEDER IN OTTAWA

'Skullduggery' Charge 'False'

By DON PEACOCK

OTTAWA (CP) — Some Alberta sheep and a drawing breeder brought moments of drama to Parliament Hill Wednesday night.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner demanded that CCF'er E. G. McCullough apologize for his Commons suggestion that "skullduggery" and "misappropriation" of public funds were involved in the $100,000 federal compensation for destruction of P. J. Rock's dis-eased pedigree flock.

The minister, along with several other members of the Commons agriculture committee, made the demand after Philip Rock, 49-year-old son of the ailing Drumheller sheep breeder, denied all the charges voiced by Mr. McCullough.

McCullough Refuses to Apologize

The member for Moose Mountain, Sask., ignored all demands that he apologize as the meeting frequently grew stormy towards its close. The special investigation of his statements finally was adjourned until today.

Mr. Rock flew here overnight Tuesday after driving into Calgary from his Drumheller farm.

He was called to appear before the committee investigating these "rumors" Mr. McCullough said the Commons was inclined to believe:

Denies Any Political Allegiance

Philip Rock, a stocky, unruffled man, replied to this:

"My father and I belong to no political party. We have never contributed a five-cent piece to any political party."

"We're Canadian citizens and we reserve the right to vote for any man and any party that we think is going to do the most good."

A good many committee members greeted this drawing statement with prolonged applause.

What about the substitutions asked Claude Richardson (Montreal St. Lawrence — St. George).

"That is completely false," replied Mr. Rock, his voice betraying no change of emotion.

Earlier he had spent some 40 minutes describing how he and his father built up a flock of sheep recognized in the United States as well as in Canada for its high quality. Now it was gone. For 25 years he had "lambred" sheep every winter and this year I fell like a fish out of water."

Entire Blood Lines Lost to World

"When our sheep were destroyed the whole block of blood lines was completely lost to North America and to the world," he said.

As for the suggestion that he might have substituted poor sheep for good ones, Mr. Rock said a purebred breeder of any live-stock builds his reputation on his guarantee that the animals he sells are what he says they are.

Someone suggested Mr. McCullough should make the statements outside the Commons where he would not be protected from court action.

Agreeing, Mr. Gardiner said: "If he made the same statements outside the House, Mr. Rock could handle them himself."

Mr. Richardson earlier asked Mr. Rock about Mr. McCullough's suggestion that some of the condemned sheep were moved to

Gordon's Confession Disputed

VANCOUVER (CP) — The last-minute confession by convicted police killer Joe Gordon who went to the gallows here Tuesday was termed Wednesday as "ridiculous."

Gordon, in a letter to the justice department, claimed it was he who held up Brail Pharmacy at gunpoint last July for which another man, John Graham Bryson, 45, is serving a six-year sentence.

"The holdup man definitely was not Joe Gordon," said Irma and David Brail, victims of the Brail.

1. Substitutions of common sheep for the pedigree Rock sheep were made before the 65-head flock was destroyed last year when hit by scrapie, a nerve-killing disease about which little is known.

2. Some Rock sheep were moved to a farm in Manitoba.

Mr. McCullough also described P. J. Rock, who was too ill to come to Ottawa for the investigation, as "one of the most prominent Liberal supporters in Alberta."

The room was still while Mr. Rock told of 20 odd years of breeding a prize flock. In 1938 the shepherd of the High River, Alta., ranch of the Duke of Windsor, Mr. Rock called him the Prince of Wales—brought back from England a special ram for the Rocks. By buying sheep from good flocks, the Rocks had a breed that produced 10 pounds of wool annually instead of five, grew faster and weighed more.

Mr. Kenneth Wells, veterinary director-general, denied there was any "skullduggery" in the slaying of the sheep. Evidence showed only about a dozen of the 65 head were suffering from the disease but all were electrocuted because little was known about scrapie.

Mr. Graham said he was directly responsible for appraising the flock in January, 1956. He said the price eventually recommended by him and other department officials was $92,100. No explanation was given as to why the $100,000 was paid.

But Mr. Rock later said he and Mr. Graham at first "didn't see eye-to-eye at all" on the compensation price. He said he thought the flock was worth at least $150,000.

He had sold a single ram in Salt Lake City, Utah, in 1948 for $3,500, a world record at the time.

Prices of others ranged from possibly $150 for unpedigreed sheep up to $500 and $1,000 a head.

J. H. Proudfoot (L-Pontiac Temiscamingue) said Mr. McCullough now should produce the person who gave him the information on which he based his statements. It was his duty as an MP. And he owed it to Mr. Rock.

Jaycees Plan Second Mass Strait Swim

Top money winner of last year's mass strait swim from Victoria to Port Angeles, Ben Laughren, "definitely" will enter the second annual cross-strait swim sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce in the summer.

Kamloops Man Victim

In Ontario Car Crash

STONECLIFFE, Ont. (CP)

The victim of a car-truck highway crash here Tuesday who was fatally burned in the wreckage has been identified as Robert Joseph Oakley of Kamloops, B.C., Ontario Provincial Police said today.

COT A CASE ON VODKA? SIMPLY ORDER A CASE

If you really must drink like the Russians you can get vodka in B.C., but it's costly!

Vodka is not for sale on shelves of B.C. liquor stores, but special orders may be placed, for a case at $4.40 a bottle.

Victoria Liberal MLA George Gregory asked about imported vodka at the recent legislative session, for entertainment of a Russian delegation last summer.

Quite in order, said Attorney-General Robert Bonner. A special order had been placed.

So Mr. Gregory tried it, too.

Today he received formal notification that the liquor board had imported, specially for him, one case of vodka. A case was the minimum order the liquor board would accept.

And he had to make a $25 deposit on the merchandise first.

JUDY BOOTS

(Barking for Monte Roberts)

Well what do you know I have reached a great decision and the decision I have reached is so great the Old Man has allowed me the use of this space today to tell you all about the great decision.

If I may say so as shouldn't this is no more than is the just due of such an intelligent female-type doggie which lives at the Old Man's House and mostly says nothing about anything let alone telling you about great decisions.

But this is such a great decision I am going to throw false modesty to the winds and announce it loud and clear to one and all and even sundry.

The great decision I have arrived at and make that read the great decision at which I have arrived if you prefer English as she should be spoke the great decision is this: (Large type, Mr. Printer, please.)

I AM GOING TO ENTER THE MISS VICTORIA CONTEST

Well there I have said it and I am glad I tell you glad because I do not see why a young female such as I (me?) should not become Miss Victoria and carry the banner of this Fair City to Far Flung Places.

It has just occurred to me perhaps you don't know about the Miss Victoria contest well the Miss Victoria contest is a thing the Junior Chamber of Commerce operates to decide who is the most charming of all the young females in Victoria and the winner is announced at the Victoria Industrial and Agricultural Exhibition and the winner receives great acclaim plus cash prizes and things.

So now you know all about the Miss Victoria contest and I guess you can see why I am entering after all I was born in Victoria and I am a Miss and intend to stay that way and I am charming and pretty and also talented in my own way.

I would dearly love to become Miss Victoria 1957 for which purpose I have used up the Old Man's space today with the intention of earnestly seeking your wholehearted support.

And if you think I am fooling why please remember everything which appears in this space is in deadly earnest at least deadly and you will be hearing more about this.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Total of donations to the Red Cross campaign here reached $67,897 at noon today — less than $12,000 away from the $79,500 goal.

Routine pyrotechnic exercises for training purposes will be conducted by Second Battalion Queen's Own Rifles of Canada Thursday and Friday in Albert Head and Mary Hill areas between 9 a.m. and 11 p.m.

City council was asked by finance committee today to institute a system of awards for employee safety suggestions.

The committee said suggestion boxes should be set up and cash or prizes amounting to about $150 a year be awarded.

A chain of office for Mayor Percy Scurrall which could cost between $295 and $1,040 will be included in the city's 1957 estimates.

Finance committee today studied four designs submitted by local merchants. City manager C. C. Wyatt was empowered by the 1956 finance committee to make recommendations.

"You people will have to settle this yourselves," said Mayor Scurrall.

"Maybe we can get a crown for you too," joked Ald. Arthur Dowell.

Slides of a European tour taken by B. C. Bracewell, retired deputy minister of municipal affairs, and Mrs. Bracewell, will be shown at a meeting of the League of the Handicapped at the YWCA Friday at 7.30 p.m.

Business portion of the meeting has been cancelled. Handicapped persons requiring transportation may call Fred Blakeney at 4-1537, or Goodwill Enterprises, 2-8315.

FRIDAY MEETINGS

Men's Canadian Club: Empress Hotel, 12.10 p.m. luncheon, to be addressed by W. E. Gladstone Murray, general manager of Responsible Enterprises, Toronto, on "B.C.'s Part in Canada's Century."

Liberal Religious Fellowship (Unitarian): Suite 410, 745 Yates, 8.30 p.m.

CNR Veterans: Knights of Pythias Hall, 2 p.m. New CNR health plan will be reviewed.

Victoria Lions: Empress Hotel, noon luncheon.

PEANUTS

IF YOU WERE AS SMART AS YOU THINK YOU ARE, YOU'RE REALLY SMART, BUT YOU'RE NOT! YOU'RE ONLY AS SMART AS I THINK YOU ARE, AND I DON'T THINK YOU'RE VERY SMART!!!

WELL, HE AXED FOR IT!

SKEENA GIVEN FIRST TASTE OF OPEN SEA

The new destroyer escort Fraser had her first taste of open water Wednesday as she commenced sea trials which will continue for nearly five months.

Her first run was a brief one of less than an hour as specialists from the builders, Yarrows Ltd., checked machinery for "bugs", but she was out again in Juan de Fuca Strait this morning for a longer run.

From now until commissioning in October, the Fraser will be a familiar sight off the Victoria coastline.

Entry List In Festival Up By 150

Greater Victoria's 1957 Music Festival is away to a flying start over last year judging by the number of entrants.

Total was announced today as 936, or 150 more than entered the 1956 festival.

May 7 to 11 and 13 to 15 are dates for the festival, sessions of which will be held at various closely located centres in downtown Victoria.

Bigger entry list means increased revenue for the festival, both through candidates' fees and general widened interest.

Entirely self-supporting, the festival committee retains only enough funds to underwrite the following year's festival, turning all other proceeds over and above expenses, into bursary and scholarship awards to outstanding students in various classes.

TRAFFIC FINES

In city police court today:

Marion E. Bradley, Oldfield Road, $35 for careless driving.

Neilson W. Harries, 664 Kelly, $40 for driving while under suspension.

Arthur Dawson Terro, 1428 Wende, $50 for failing to remain at the scene of an accident and $35 for careless driving, plus licence suspension.

Gilbert R. Barbour, 1028 Richardson, $35 for careless driving and undertaking to drive only for business for one month.

It was felt the system would be expensive and impractical. Also discarded as impossible under the Elections Act, was a proposal that hospital patients be permitted to vote by mail.

A suggestion by Ald. Donald Smith that the city consider use of multiple polling stations in future elections was dropped by council finance committee to day.

It was felt the system would be expensive and impractical.

Also discarded as impossible under the Elections Act, was a proposal that hospital patients be permitted to vote by mail.

Other likely candidates are mink rancher Herman F. Williams, salesman Norman Bell and pharmacist John D. Johnson.

U.S. Fishboat Disabled

The U.S. coast guard today dispatched the Cutter McClane from Aberdeen, Wash., to aid the 65-foot fishing boat Traveler, whose skipper radioed that the vessel was disabled off Vancouver Island.

The Traveler, with four men aboard, is owned by Sig Olwick of Seattle. The radio report said it had a broken engine connecting rod, and was drifting 20 miles south of Estevan Point.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Slippers of Golden Lamé Accent Favorite Outfits

By PENNY SAVER

Here and there, everywhere . . . that's where I shopped today. I found many and varied items to interest you and to make shopping fun.

Lounging slippers that may also double as light and glittery slippers for an evening of dancing will please the lady who loves feminine finery. The ballet-type slippers are styled of elasticized gold metallic lame and come in sizes small, medium and large. One of the wonderful features of these slippers is that they are hand washable, and the gold is non-tarnishable. You can fold them up neatly into a little clear plastic bag that comes with them, and they'll tuck into purse or bag to take on jaunts with you. They fit snugly, of course, the elasticized material assures that. A pair costs $6.

Large gold button earrings are these colorfully-tinted quill ball all the rage this season. They come with smooth or bumpy surfaces; some resemble rounded-out nuggets. They look so smart with your tweedy-and-tailored outfit! That you'll want several pair of various styles and sizes. You can afford them, too, for the price is just $1. Curves, ovals, circles, squares . . . they come in all shapes in either shiny or dulled golden finishes.

Sun-Wardrobe

For sun, for fun—this Printed Pattern is the answer to a smart sports—wardrobe! Mix, match color and fabric; make the poncho in 2 sleeve lengths—wear with short shorts and flat-tails will be able to concentrate on fewer sizes.

Carpets made by tufting processes in which the tufts are locked by plastic backing, or by another process, which blows the fibre onto an adhesive backing. A United States producer estimates that within 10 years 60 per cent of soft floor coverings will be made in such ways.

A preparation which resists soiling. It fills the microscopic pits and crevices where dirt collects and robs it a home.

Television sets small enough to hang on walls like pictures.

Electric blankets which will keep you warm in winter and cool in summer.

Dr. H. F. Hoerig, research and development manager, DuPont of Canada, Limited, also demonstrated a recently developed polyester film which withstands the force of a thrown baseball.

Molasses Magic for Rabbit—Rabbit!—The Welsh say "rabbit up" and the dictionary backs 'em up! But, call it rabbit or rabbit, this cheese dish is an all-time favorite, especially during the Lenten season. For a zesty touch of flavor magic, try adding a little real New Orleans molasses to your next rabbit, if it's prepared or homemade. No controversy here on the taste—it's terrific!

Women

Elizabeth Forbes

World traveler and trained designer, Mrs. E. L. Douglas, will model her own exquisite creations at a style show for ladies who have accompanied their husbands to the two-day Olympic Logging Conference in the Empress Hotel. The showing will be presented at a tea for the ladies in the main dining room at the hotel on Friday afternoon.

Beautiful Materials Her Love; Design Her Hobby

"It's strictly a hobby," Mrs. E. L. Douglas assures you. "The clothes I design and make are of such costly—often rare—materials, and I put so much intricate work into the making, I could never sell them for what they cost in time and money, even if I wished."

Mrs. Douglas usually starts with a length of material she has picked up in her travels around the world. It may be a Bavarian print made from 400-year-old wood blocks still in use in Munich; a Liberty of London hand-blocked woolen as sheer and soft as silk; a gorgeous fabric from the Hawaiian Islands or even a glorious sari from India.

Often she will keep a piece haggling in her bedroom in her lovely home in Seattle while she studies its possibilities and works out the basic design while she lies in bed, humoring a bad back.

Then with designer's chalk and her needle, she "whips up" something new and different.

It all started when she began sewing for her daughter, Miss Helen Ann Douglas, who is following in her mother's sandals steps, by the way. Miss Douglas is now writing her master's thesis on fabrics for the Prince School of Merchandising in Boston, a division of Simmons College.

In the private style showing on Friday in the Empress Hotel, Mrs. Douglas will model her own outfit, ranging from informal lounging clothing to formal evening wear. Many of the dresses have matching stoles, jackets and hats.

Miss Munn Plays For Symphony Committee Members

Following a meeting of the Women's Committee of the Victoria Symphony Society, held at the Falkland Road home of Miss Mary Munn, the hostess, delighted the gathering with piano selections by Mozart, Griffiths, Prokofieff and Chopin.

Mrs. Denis Humphries presided at the meeting and welcomed new members, Mme Gabrielle Yewdall, Mrs. James Fraser and Mrs. J. Howard McKay.

Mrs. D. B. Roxburgh, convenor of arrangements for the seventh annual garden party of the society in late July, announced that it will again be held at "Arlow Farm," the country home of Capt. and Mrs. Massy Gorden. Mrs. Arthur Laundry is co-convenor and a highlight of the affair will be a fashion show presented by the T. Eaton Company.

Pianist Speaks Of Examiner

Herbert Fryer, who died recently was subject of a short address given by Miss Mary Munn at a meeting of the Royal Schools Alumni Association, held in her Falkland Road home. Mr. Fryer was well-known in Canada and particularly in Victoria, as one of the examiners of the associated board.

Plans were made during the business meeting for the annual picnic in June. Later, Miss Munn entertained with a group of outstanding piano solos by Bach, Mozart, Griffiths, Prokofieff and Chopin.

Refreshments were served by candlelight.

NEW LOOK FOR SPRING

High, Square or Tip-Tilted Millinery Has Unique Charm

Spring definitely "went to lady's head," settled on her well-manicured hands, at her neck and on her wrists, Wednesday afternoon in the Oak Bay United Church hall, where the Athena Club presented a spring tea and fashion show.

A bower of early spring flowers created a stage setting for the showing of millinery, gloves and costume jewelry, presented by Toojays Ltd.

Mrs. J. Riome was the commentator and the models, who came down from the stage and strolled among the tea tables, were Mrs. H. Cole, Mrs. G. B. Marshall, Mrs. A. J. Bowering, Mrs. B. Bugsag, Mrs. H. J. Williams, Mrs. C. H. Moore and Mrs. L. D. Shortt.

The theme of the showing was "Flair and Flowers." Colors were "flower fresh"; hats showed exotic trims of pink and red roses, garlands, violets, hyacinths and lilies; gloves were in the longer length.

With five different changes of color in hats, gloves and accessories the basic suit or dress worn by each model was made to look quite different and ready to do duty around the clock.

Tea was served at small tables centred with dainty arrangements of small spring blossoms. Mrs. A. Landels and Mrs. H. McCaw were in charge

KING'S DAUGHTERS' DAFFODIL TEA

This Saturday afternoon in the attractive home of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Brown, 2555 Cotswold Road (above), the annual daffodil tea of the King's Daughters will be held from 3 to 5 p.m. Miss Kathleen Agnew, inset at right, with Miss Verna Beck, Mrs. Lillian Johns, and Mrs. Edwin Tomlin, will preside at the tea table. Miss Ivy Burwood is convenor and proceeds will be used to carry on the philanthropic work of the Order including the cerebral palsy clinic, Sunshine Camp, Corgo Road Hospital and the multiple sclerosis patients. The Brown home is at the corner of Weald Road in the Uplands.

Married In St. John's Church

In a double-ring ceremony in St. John's Anglican Church recently, Miss Marjorie Naysmith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Naysmith, Shearwater Street, was united in marriage with Vernon Wesley Cann, son of Mrs. Elsie Cann, Boyd Street.

Canon C. W. Downer, officiated at the ceremony in a setting of blue iris, daffodils and spring flowers. Frederick Chubb was organist.

The bride was lovely in a full-length gown of filmy nylon net and lace over duchess satin. The lace bodice was styled with a Sabrina neckline and lily-point sleeves, and embroidered with iridescent sequins. A Juliet cap of lace and nylon net sprinkled with sequins held her misting full-length veil.

The groom had Peter Fediw

as best man, and ushering guests to pews marked with pink and white heather, and white ribbon bows were A. Vickery and W. Van Munster.

Maid of honor was the bride's sister, Miss Louise Naysmith, gowned in a blue taffeta and lace dress. Her headdress was of blue flowers and her bouquet of blue iris and white feathered carnations. Junior bridesmaids, Miss Donna Cann, sister of the groom, wore a pink taffeta dress with matching headress and floral bouquet. Flower girls were Twyla Bolley and Dorothy Godbold, dressed alike in yellow taffeta frocks. They carried colonial bouquets and wore matching flowers in their hair.

as best man, and ushering guests to pews marked with pink and white heather, and white ribbon bows were A. Vickery and W. Van Munster.

As the newlyweds left the church, the bells chimed and little flower girl, Twyla Bolley, presented them with good luck horseshoes sent by friends from Wales. A reception party was held in St. Albans Church hall, where a three-piece orchestra provided music. A wedding cake topped with pink roses and fern centred the bride's table where silver candelabra with tall pink tapers completed the arrangement. J. Coles, uncle of the bride, proposed the toast.

ANOTHER REFUTATION

Emily Carr Friend Scornful of Toby

A spirited denial of artist Mark Tobey's recent statement that "there would have been no Emily Carr if it hadn't been for me" was made today by Miss Flora Hamilton Burns, 1052 Newport Avenue.

Describing herself as an intimate friend of Emily Carr long before and after Mark Tobey entered her life, she said "Miss Carr had a long line of distinguished and well-known art teachers who from her earliest years recognized her gifts."

These included Algernon Tallmage and John Whiteley in England in 1901-02; Harry Gibb, with whom she studied in Paris and Brittany in 1910 and 1911, and men of the Colorossi Studio in Paris.

ACCLAIM IN 1927

According to Miss Burns, Emily Carr had never met Mark Tobey when Eric Brown, curator of the National Gallery in Ottawa, first asked her in 1927 to exhibit 26 of her pictures. She met some of the famous Group of Seven at the gallery, and they acclaimed her pictures and asked her to exhibit at their own show.

"Here is what Lawren Harris said on seeing her pictures for the first time and being asked to criticize them: 'Your work is impressive. I really have, nor can have, nothing to say in the way of criticism. I feel you have found a way of your own. The pictures are works of art in their own right . . . have creative life in them . . . they breathe!'"

Mr. Tobey said that a woman living Miss Carr's circumscribed life could not have developed as she did, and conceived her great ideas changed.

"I was that person," he said in an interview here, March 25.

Miss Carr's own statement of the greatest influence on her, according to Miss Burns:

IDEAS CHANGED

"The day I entered the building, climbed the cold stairs, was met by Mr. Harris and led into his tranquil studio—that day my ideas of art wholly changed. My first impression of Lawren Harris has never faltered. His work and example did more to influence my outlook on art than any other school or any master. They had given me mechanical foundation. Lawren Harris looked higher, dug deeper. 'Solidite is swell,' wrote Mr. Harris. I believe now I was glad we (in the west) were cut off."

Miss Burns does not deny that Tobey stimulated Miss Carr.

"She derived enjoyment and benefit from their hours of work and discussion when he was her guest once or twice in the late 20s and early 30s, and I was present on some of those occasions," Miss Burns said about her old friend. "It was he who helped her to overcome the actions of household duties by relegating them to second place, as she recounts in her autobiography."

"At the time of one of his visits, Emily Carr was striving to master the theory of abstract art, and I know she valued his help in this, but while she was often moved by it in the work of others, and perceived its underlying truth, she was never drawn to it as a medium for herself."

MYSTERIOUS WARTIME VISIT FROM WENNER-GREN

The Man Who Came to Lunch

By V. B. WILLCOCK

Axel Wenner-Gren, the mystery man of the world, is no stranger to British Columbia. It was during the war that I met him up the coast at Stuart Island, situated at the mouth of Bute Inlet.

His arrival at Stuart Island was a little mysterious. I had noticed a small boat coming across the Yuclataw Rapids. When the boat docked, I noticed five men in it and as soon as they were tied up two sailors in uniform came to attention and saluted as the three passengers climbed ashore.

I introduced myself and asked if there was anything I could help them with. With Wenner-Gren were his captain and a gentleman who said he was his secretary. I didn't see any big boat around so I naturally asked them, Mrs. Kelling, had a husband in the Navy. But they captain informed me that the boat was drifting around the mouth of Bute Inlet as it was too big to tie up at the average upcoast float. As soon as he mentioned "The Southern Cross" I was very interested, as I knew that this boat was considered one of the world's finest yachts.

I spoke to the wife and asked if they could have lunch, as my family were the only people at this point. I said that I would speak to the wife, so we walked up the floats towards the house. On the way one of the three asked if we had beer. I informed the party that beer was a pretty scarce thing upcoast on account of the war.

The wife said that she would give them lunch, but as the boat hadn't come in there was no fresh meat, just ham and eggs. I informed the party and they said that it would be all right. Up to that point Wenner-Gren hadn't spoken much English. But he got talking about the country, what we did; population; how the people made a living, etc.

When lunch was ready I took them into the kitchen and introduced them to Mrs. Willcock. I noticed Wenner-Gren took a great interest in the kitchen. My wife had set two places at one side of the table and one at the end. She seated the captain and secretary at the side and pulled out the chair at the end for Mr. Wenner-Gren.

At the back of the table against the wall was a bench that the girls used. This bench was next to the door that led into the store. If Wenner-Gren sat at the end of the table he wouldn't be able to see anyone coming in from the store. So he picked up the silverware and moved it in front of his friends.

City Arena Resumes Popular Summer Dances for Students

First of a series of summer "honor system" regarding behavior, and that dress may be proper—no blue jeans or pedal-pushers allowed. Charge will be 50 cents.

Popularity of the dances were evidenced last year when 8,809 students attended the 13 Saturday night sessions.

A special stage for dances will be built, together with enclosures for demonstrations or stage shows by students.

Tops in the latest recordings will be heard.

Arena manager Joe Dukowski said students would be on the

Victoria-Born Artist Given London Show

Victoria-born artist William J. B. Newcombe has an exhibition of water colors which opened Wednesday in London's Obelisk Gallery.

Mr. Newcombe has a picture in the Art Gallery here, and several in a private collection.

Since the war, Mr. Newcombe has been living in Toronto where he has painted, and acted as a consultant to various commercial art firms.

Rated as "abstract impressionist," he had a painting purchased recently by the Whitworth Galleries in Manchester, whose collection of water colors is highly rated.

Future exhibitions of his works will be held in Wuppertal, Germany, and in Brussels.

During his residence on the West Coast, the artist lived and painted for a time on South Fender Island.

Cancer of the skin is the commonest form of cancer in men. If treated early it can nearly always be cured.

Charge will be 50 cents.

Seamen Accused In Stabbing Remanded Again

A further remand to Friday was granted three British merchant seamen in city police court Wednesday to enable counsel to interview them in connection with charges of wounding with a knife.

The three, Brian Smith, 18; John Huartson, 18, and John Foulks, 23, were arrested and charged last Wednesday with the stabbing of Philip W. Morgan, 35, unemployed welder, who is in good condition at Jubilee Hospital.

Morgan was found stabbed about 2:30 a.m. last Wednesday, lying on a boulevard at Fort and Richmond.

Cancer of the skin is the commonest form of cancer in men.

If treated early it can nearly always be cured.

Charge will be 50 cents.

BRENTWOOD HOME of designer-resident Rowland Brown was one of three Victoria and district houses to win national Canadian Housing Design Council awards, presented in Ottawa Wednesday night by Governor-General

Vincent Massey. Six awards were given. Builder of home, Roy Tidman, Brentwood, was in Ottawa for presentation, as was H. L. Ferguson, builder of two other winning city homes designed by Clack, Clayton, Pickstone.

Ground To Be Broken This Month For Senior Citizens Housing Unit

Victoria Senior Citizens' Housing Society will break the ground this month for a $70,000 pensioners' apartment building on Styles Street, opposite Banfield Park in Victoria West.

Tenders will be called for construction of the first of several similar units in Greater Victoria as soon as architect's plans are released and the area is rezoned for apartment-type dwellings, president George Williams said following a meeting Wednesday night.

City council is expected to approve amendment of the zoning by-law affecting the two lots at a meeting next Thursday, April 11.

Already, a dozen applications have been received for bachelor and couples' suites which will accommodate 23 persons.

Screening of applicants will be based on financial need, Mr. Williams said.

Tom Finney Named Footballer of Year

LONDON (AP)—Tom Finney, 34-year-old Preston and England soccer star, Wednesday was named England's "footballer of the year" by the Football Writers' Association.

Finney will play centre forward for England against Scotland at Wembley, on Saturday.

Reaction of the nurses to the conciliation board recommendations were not known today. If they are rejected the next step would be a strike vote.

Chairman of the conciliation board is Forrest L. Shaw. Nurses' representative is city lawyer Richard C. Ellis and the city is represented by Archie Wills.

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by children and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia (Canadian edition) and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Address your questions to "Ask Andy," Victoria Daily Times.

Andy sends a complete, 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia to Charles Presley, 14, Thomaston, Ga., for his question:

Where Does the Day Begin?

Morse than half a century so as to include Alaska and some of the Aleutians in the American date zone. South of the equator it jogs to the east in order to include the Fijis and other south sea islands in the same date zone as Australia.

A calendar day lasts from midnight to midnight. And each new calendar day is born on the Date Line. From this point it travels westward around the earth and ends on the eastern side of the Date Line. Wednesday noon on the western side is Tuesday noon on the eastern side. Crossing from the east, Tuesday noon becomes Wednesday noon. Crossing from the west, Wednesday noon becomes Tuesday noon.

A traveler around the world loses or gains a calendar day a bit at a time. In a journey across America, he crosses four time zones. Travelling westward he gains a day; travelling eastward he loses a day. Travelling eastward he sets his watch back an hour with every time zone. Travelling westward he sets his watch forward an hour with every time zone. Travelling eastward, he gains a calendar day.

The earth pays no attention to man-made calendars. Midnight over the Atlantic is noon over the Pacific. And at every moment a new day is beginning somewhere on the earth's surface. So man, who invented the calendar, had to fix a spot where every date, every new calendar day, should begin. This should be a meridian running from pole to pole and far from densely settled areas. For one calendar day would be ending on one side of this line and a new calendar day beginning on the other side. It would be possible to step from Tuesday to Wednesday and back again very confusing to the business people in a city area!

The right spot was selected by sailors. Seafarers of many nations developed a custom of changing dates as they crossed the meridians.

Twenty-one Cub Scouts under the leadership of Scoutmaster Phyllis Sheffield and D. Danns held a swim meet at the Crystal Garden Tuesday evening. Some of the boys were able to pass their swimmer's badge test under the supervision of Fred Ellison, instructor at pool.

Whistle Signals

Whistle signals are few and easily memorized.

One short blast—say of one second's duration—signals intention to direct the course of the ship to the starboard. Two short blasts signal intention to change course to port. Three short blasts indicate that the engines are full speed astern.

A vessel under way in a fog, except when towing other boats or being towed, shall give a prolonged blast at intervals of not more than one minute. A vessel at anchor shall ring its bell rapidly for a few seconds every minute.

Passing signals are never given without a corresponding change of course. Whistle signals are never given a sailing vessel, and a boat whistling first gains no right over another.

A vessel's right cannot be altered by whistle signals.

Right of way does not excuse neglect or courtesy. Small, unencumbered craft can usually give way to large craft, or those with bows, or a racing fleet of sailing boats.

ON 'SPECIFIED' LIST

Wenner-Gren Enemy In War, Commons Told

See Also Page 20
OTTAWA (CP) — State Secretary Ward informed CCFer G. H. Castleden Wednesday — in a roundabout way — that Swedish financier Axel Wenner - Gren was considered an enemy of Canada during the Second World War.

Mr. Castleden, member for Yorkton, Sask., asked in a written question whether the multi-millionaire was "ever placed on the list of those persons deemed by the Canadian government to be enemies of Canada." If so, when and for what reasons?

Mr. Pinard replied in the Commons that the answer could be found in order-in-council PC 845 of Feb. 3, 1942, published in the Canada Gazette at that time.

The Canada Gazette for Feb. 14,

1942, showed the name of Axel Wenner - Gren, as a resident of Mexico, in a "list of specified persons" with whom Canadians were prohibited to trade.

It said that persons in the list "although not residents or carrying on business in enemy territory or in territory in occupation of the enemy are, by reason of their nationality or enemy association, persons with whom trading is prohibited, and that the entering into of transactions or doing of any acts with, to, or on behalf of such persons, is trading with the enemy and that such persons shall be deemed to be and to have been enemies from and including the second day of September, 1939, for the purposes of the regulations respecting trading with the enemy."

Her parents knew the man being held for murder.

"He was a nice, quiet fellow. I can't imagine what happened; something must have snapped," said Mr. Smith, a retired Victoria fireman.

HAPPY APPROACH

Friends and acquaintances of the dead woman spoke highly of her happy approach to life.

"She was jolly as can be,

worried her," said previous co-

workers at a city laundry where Mrs. Duyvejonck had been employed as a shirt presser.

She had worked in several laundries in Victoria "off and on."

Her parents knew the man being held for murder.

"He was a nice, quiet fellow.

I can't imagine what happened;

something must have snapped,"

said Mr. Smith.

O God, give me a kindly spirit, a friendly heart, an open mind, a simple faith as I live my life each day. Free me from shallow fears and corroding cares. Lift me above all cynicism, above all bitterness and sullen hate. And may I have only one purpose—namely, to live worthily of the Christ whom I have acknowledged and whom I have claimed as my own. U.S. 'Red' Persecution Blamed For Norman's Suicide in Cairo

NORMAN NEVER WAS RED SAYS ROBERT MAYHEW

Robert W. Mayhew, Victoria, retired Canadian ambassador to Japan, today expressed deep grief over the death of Herbert Norman, Canadian ambassador to Egypt.

Mr. Norman was in Japan for Canada before Mr. Mayhew took up his post there in 1952, but they knew each other well in Ottawa where Mr. Mayhew was a cabinet minister.

Mr. Mayhew flatly repudiated the suggestion that Mr. Norman had been a Communist.

"I don't believe a word of it. He is not a Communist and never was one," he said. "He was an excellent chap and very helpful to me when I was preparing for the Tokyo position."

CCFer CHARGES:

'Murdered By Slander'

OTTAWA (CP)—Alistair Stewart, CCF member for Winnipeg North Centre, said in the Commons today Herbert Norman, Canadian ambassador to Egypt, was "murdered by slander."

He said Mr. Norman had died as surely as if someone had put a knife in his back.

Spokesmen for all parties, including Prime Minister St. Laurent, paid tribute to Mr. Norman, who committed suicide in Cairo today.

External Affairs Minister Pearson repeated a statement he issued earlier to the press in which he attributed Mr. Norman's death to nervous collapse brought on by overstrain, overwork and a feeling of renewed persecution.

This was a reference to renewed allegations in a United States Senate sub-committee on internal security linking Mr. Norman with communism.

'LAMENTABLE TRAGEDY'

One could have heard a pin drop in the Commons as Mr. Stewart rose during the question period to ask Mr. Pearson to comment on the "lamentable tragedy" in Cairo. Mr. Pearson read the statement he had issued earlier.

He added that after the U.S. Senate sub-committee charges had been raised in the Commons three weeks ago he had received a telegram from Mr. Norman.

The ambassador had expressed his appreciation to Mr. Pearson and Opposition Leader Diefenbaker for their defence of him in the Commons. Mr. Norman said that though the allegations were vexing, the reaction to them in the Commons had increased his pride in and devotion to free Canadian institutions.

Mr. Diefenbaker said it is wholly desirable to protect freedom but that freedom will not be preserved by adopting the techniques and instruments of communism.

All members felt deep sorrow that Mr. Norman's good name

The dead woman and Miller were childhood friends at North Ward school. Years passed and they met here again last September.

They went to Courtenay from Victoria in mid-March and lived together there.

The murdered woman's parents were red-eyed but calm today. 24 hours after hearing from the RCMP that their vivacious blonde daughter had been slain.

HAPPY APPROACH

Friends and acquaintances of the dead woman spoke highly of her happy approach to life.

"She was jolly as can be,

worried her," said previous co-

workers at a city laundry where Mrs. Duyvejonck had been employed as a shirt presser.

She had worked in several laundries in Victoria "off and on."

Her parents knew the man being held for murder.

"He was a nice, quiet fellow.

I can't imagine what happened;

something must have snapped,"

said Mr. Smith.

'Without Hope' Says Death Note

CAIRO (CP)—Herbert Norman, Canadian ambassador to Egypt who was distressed by accusations of Communist tendencies by a United States Senate sub-committee, plunged to his death today from a seventh-floor window.

The 48-year-old ambassador fell from a window in the home of Carl Eng, Sweden's minister to Egypt. His death was declared suicide by Egyptian police.

The Canadian Embassy said he apparently took his life because of "recent unpleasant publicity and accusations."

Norman died, in the words of a note he left addressed to his wife, "without hope"—despite the fact that the Senate sub-committee's allegations that he was a former Communist had been repudiated by the U.S. state department and despite a vigorous defence of his record by External Affairs Minister Pearson in parliament at Ottawa.

The note, scrawled on an embossed paper, was found in the pocket of his light grey suit. It was a note addressed to the Swedish minister Brynolf Eng, not home at the time, apologizing for using the building to take his life.

Egypt's semi-official Middle East News Agency said the letter to his wife read in part: "I kiss your feet and I beg you to forgive me for what I am doing."

The one to Eng said in part: "I for 'ye live without hope.' This is for 'ye live without hope.' This is a quotation from the Bible."

Eye-witnesses say Norman was pacing along the roof of the building. A group had gathered before he jumped.

A preliminary autopsy showed Norman died instantly of head injuries.

Policemen said Norman had told his driver to park his car outside the embassy while he took a walk. He entered the Swedish building, took with the Reds.

Defended in Commons By Pearson

The state department, following fore been investigated and dis-

Canada's protest over release of similar material March 14, had asked the sub-committee not to release the later testimony because "it might be damaging to our friendly relations with Canada."

The statement recalled that the sub-committee has been hearing testimony "about Communist activities in the United States which may have an important bearing on our internal security."

It continued:

"In the course of this testimony, evidence has been received indicating that certain foreign nationals have emerged in Communist activities in the United States.

The Canadian protest had come after the U.S. Senate defied Norman's name first came up in the Senate sub-committee in 1951 when the group, headed by the late senator Patrick McCarran (Dem., Nev.), was investigating the institute of Pacific relations.

The Canadian government protested to the U.S. then and expressed surprise Norman's name had been "dragged" into the hearings. The protest, delivered orally to the state department in Washington, was reported in Ottawa to be one of the strongest exchanged between the two governments in recent years.

Following the latest Canadian protest, the state department gave a public service announcement that Norman's name had been cleared of Communist suspicion check "in his own interests and with the public interest and with his own approval and full cooperation."

"As a result of that check, our confidence in Mr. Norman's loyalty was not weakened in any respect.

"Nothing he has done since has affected—unless to increase—the confidence we have in him as a devoted, efficient and loyal official of the government who is doing extremely important work at a very difficult post in a way which commands my wholehearted admiration and deserves my full support."

DISTRESSED BY CHARGES

An additional embassy statement issued here after the ambassador's death said:

"The Canadian ambassador had always been an extremely conscientious public servant, and recent unpleasant publicity and accusations had greatly distressed him."

"In this depressed condition Mr. Norman apparently took his own life."

Norman, Japan-born son of a United Church missionary, took over the Cairo post in August, 1956. He is survived by his widow.

In August, 1951, the U.S. House of Representatives un-American activities committee first named him as a former Communist. The Canadian government at that time issued a statement completely exonerating him and protested to the U.S. government over disclosure of the charges.

At that time Norman was Canada's chief representative at the United Nations. He returned to Ottawa in September of that year and in 1953 was appointed high commissioner to New Zealand.

The 1951 U.S. charge was that Norman had belonged to a Communist party student group at Cape Cod in 1933.

An Ottawa informant told The Canadian Press then that it had been established that Norman had never been at Cape Cod in his life.

He was fully cleared, the informant said, and his status as a trustworthy officer of the external affairs department was established.

Norman was the son of Rev. Daniel Norman. He was an expert on Far Eastern affairs and a recognized authority on Japan. He was the author of a number of books about Japan, including Japan's Emergence as a Modern State.

He was reared in the Orient and was graduated from Victoria College in the University of Toronto received a three-year Rockefeller Foundation grant after leaving Cambridge and took his master's and doctor's degrees at Harvard.

During the Second World War he was interned by the Japanese for several months. He had joined the Canadian legation in Tokyo in 1939.

After the war he was posted back to Tokyo as head of the Canadian liaison mission. He served as chief adviser to the Canadian delegation at the Japanese peace treaty conference in San Francisco in September, 1951.

1951 HEARINGS

At the 1951 hearings of the un-American activities committee, Dr. Carl August Wittfogel, who said he had been a Communist in Germany before breaking with the party in 1939, contended that he had met Norman at meetings of certain congressional inquisitors in Washington who, lacking local targets, felt impelled to malign and condemn Canadian public servants as well.

Mr. Pearson said Mr. Norman was deeply and understandably depressed "by the resurrection by one or two persons in Washington of certain old charges affecting his loyalty and which were disposed of years ago."

He added:

"The reasons for these renewed attacks may be obscure but the tactics used degrade only those who adopted them."

TRAGIC DEATH

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said in a statement that Mr. Norman's "tragic death seems to be attributable to the witch-hunting proclivities of certain congressional inquisitors in Washington who, lacking local targets, felt impelled to malign and condemn Canadian public servants as well."

Mr. Pearson's statement was read to the Parliamentary Press Gallery by an external affairs department press officer. It said:

"For 18 years Mr. Herbert Norman served his country as an official of the department of external affairs with loyalty, devotion and ability. During that time all his actions served only to confirm and strengthen my faith in and my admiration for him."

GREAT PRESSURE

"During recent critical months in the Middle East, he has been working — or rather overworking — under great pressure at Cairo; at times right around the clock.

"He has also been deeply and understandably distressed by the resurrection by one or two persons in Washington of certain old charges affecting his loyalty, and which were disposed of years ago after a careful investigation. The reasons for these renewed attacks may be obscure, but the tactics used degrade only those who adopted them."

The combined effect of overwork, overstrain and the feeling of renewed persecution on a sensitive mind and a not very robust body produced a nervous collapse, the tragic result of which has brought to me personally and, I am sure, to his colleagues and friends, both shock and grief and a sense of great loss.

"My deep and heartfelt sympathy goes out to his widow and to his family at this dark hour."

LIVELY IN SPIRIT

"I saw him only a few weeks ago and he was in perfect health and lively in spirit. I have worked with him and he was a very fine Canadian public servant."

Norman's last appearance in public was at a Japanese Embassy film showing in a Cairo cinema Wednesday night.

The film, called Mask and Destiny, portrays an exiled governor who carves a mask which, despite his efforts to make it gay, irresistibly turns into a "death mask." It ends with the governor's murder.

Norman told a friend later: "I love Japanese films, they're so true."

Norman's close friends said they noticed he was tired lately and advised him to take leave.

They said he did not attend a meeting of Commonwealth envoys in Cairo Wednesday, although the gathering was a routine one.

"Funeral arrangements have not yet been made."

had been stolen from him, that he had been tried by suspicion and that in the public mind he had been convicted by innuendo.

Mr. Diefenbaker suggested that parliament show its feelings by having the flag atop the Parliament Buildings flown at half staff "for one who had died in the service of his country."

Rev. E. G. Hansell (SC-MacLeod) said once again Canadians were face to face with the fact that men in high places have terrific responsibilities, perhaps far beyond what the public mind can conceive.

PERSECUTION

In his statement to the press External Affairs Minister Pearson said that Ambassador Norman died as a result of nervous collapse brought on by overwork, overstrain and "a feeling of renewed persecution."

Mr. Pearson said Mr. Norman was deeply and understandably depressed "by the resurrection by one or two persons in Washington of certain old charges affecting his loyalty and which were disposed of years ago."

He added:

"The reasons for these renewed attacks may be obscure but the tactics used degrade only those who adopted them."

tine this practice because it is our duty to do so."

Reporters noted that the statement was signed by only two members of the seven-man sub-committee, Senator James O. Eastland (Dem., Miss.) and Senator William Jenner of Indiana, senior Republican member. They asked whether it expressed the sentiment of the remaining sub-committee members.

Morris said the statement had been issued in that fashion to get it out quickly.

Reporters asked Morris if this implied Norman had engaged in Communist activity here and if Morris had "concrete evidence" that Norman was ever a Communist.

Morris did not reply. Morris was asked if the sub-committee would continue investigating Norman.

"We were never investigating Norman," Morris said.

A reporter asked if anyone, including the Canadian government, ever asked the sub-committee to delete reference to foreign nationals.

"The statement speaks for itself," Morris said.

"Do you feel any responsibility for Norman's death?" a newsman asked.

"The statement speaks for itself," Morris answered.

"Who is your next victim?" another unidentified reporter said.

Morris did not answer.

NEW YORK (CP) — Professor Carl August Wittfogel, who U.S. Senate security investigation committee said, linked the name of Canadian diplomat E. Herbert Norman with communism, said today he "is sorry for anybody who is unhappy and tortured."

Wittfogel, a former German Communist now on the staff of Columbia University here, said he was "shocked and surprised" to hear of Norman's suicide in Cairo today.

In 1955 Wittfogel was quoted by Robert Morris, counsel for the Senate internal security sub-committee, to the effect Norman had been a member of a Communist cell at Columbia in 1940.

Asked about a transcript of his testimony naming Norman as a Communist released by the sub-committee in 1951, Wittfogel replied: "I don't think this is any time to go into that now."

Mrs. Duyvejonck's husband, Arthur, from whom she had been separated five years was due in Victoria today from an RCAF station outside Quebec City. He is an RCAF corporal.

And daughter Cheryl, 7, who slept through the grim events which took place about 10 p.m. Tuesday, is also due here today.

She will live with the murdered woman's parents. Another daughter, Christine, 5, is being boarded in the city.

The killing took place in an old-style farmhouse called Grieve Manor House on the Campbell River Road, about three miles from Courtenay.

Miller himself called police.

EMPLOYERS SHOCKED

From last July to about March 1 the man charged with the murder was employed as a route driver by a Victoria dairy.

His employers were "astonished and shocked" to hear the charges against him.

"Lee was a top-notch man. He kept pretty much to himself and didn't mix much, but was well regarded. He was a very good salesmen and a good worker."

Only last Monday Miller started working as a mechanic for Shaw Motors Ltd. in Courtenay.

Harold Shaw said Miller "seemed like a normal, ordinary sort of fellow to me."

A hunting knife, believed to be the murder weapon, is being held as evidence. There was no sign of a struggle.

The body is being brought to Victoria for burial, in charge of Hayward's funeral home.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

The murder charge was the first of two shocks for the Miller family.

The rented home of Miller's brother, Alvin, near Courtenay, was heavily damaged by fire late Wednesday and all contents destroyed while Alvin was en route to Victoria to carry the tragic news to his parents.

The Garden City

(Reprinted by Request)
THIS column strikes me as having been very worthy and dull of late. So let's consider the subject of manure.

It seems to be a good Victorian subject. Or so says a woman from Edmonton, who insists that on her annual pilgrimage to our city, she invariably finds herself at a tea party where everyone is talking manure for gardens.

It's true, I guess. I know that since I heard this story I've thought of dozens of people who grow quite lyrical at the mention of manure. Their eyes sparkle. Their voices take on a keener tone. They lean forward in their chairs and interrupt and contradict each other without any thought of manners.

Take, for instance, the woman who talked for twenty minutes about turkey droppings. "Turkey for me," she said, quite fiercely. "I swear by turkey. A well-filled sack from the turkey farm is the nicest present I could have."

And it seems that she visits friends who have a turkey farm, and comes home with a precious sack tucked into the trunk of her car. (Think what a road check would reveal of Victorian habits!)

(And I must confess that I was quite absorbed by her description of the growth in the place where her friends bury turkey feathers after plucking. "Tremendous growth," she said. "The nitrogen, you know.")

Since I became manure-conscious, I've thought of the Saanich resident, a highly-educated man, whose idea of Heaven is to put on his oldest clothes, and take a bucket to a farmer neighbor so he can rootle round in the messy purloin of the barn.

Ruth

I've thought of the man who swears by horse manure.

"I dug a trench," he said, "and lined it with horse manure, and put the potatoes right into it. My father-in-law said they'd be scabby. They were wonderful. Just wonderful. Never had such a crop in my life."

I've thought of a luncheon of intelligent middle-aged women where the conversation suddenly shifted from Gruber and Mozart to gardens and manure.

I've thought of a man who looked as if he'd inherited a fortune as he watched a load of cow manure being dumped for his garden.

I've thought of the farmer who wouldn't sell a load of manure no matter what you paid him.

"What comes out of my land goes back into it," he says, and no amount of pleading will soften his dedicated heart.

I've thought with pity of the heretic who's bored by talk about manure, and refers to gardening as "this perpetual irritation of the earth."

I've thought with scorn of the chumps who want to take the tally-hos off our streets because you know what is an affront to their pernickety little souls.

"I can't think what the town is coming to," a sweet-faced Victorian lady said, quite pink with protest. "Why, this summer I saw a man run out with a bucket and a shovel after the tally-ho had passed along his street. He looked pleased as Punch. And I don't wonder. The lucky chap!"

Queer, dear Victoria. What fun Ruth Draper might have had with some of us.

Is there any offcity with such a magnificence of values?

But it took the story of the woman from Edmonton to show me how sane and sensible we are.

Definitely down to earth!

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

YOUR HEALTH

Eyeglasses on a Small Child

Dr. Walter C. Alvarez is Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic, and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation

I was just reading an excellent article on the vision of the pre-school child, written by Dr. Cecil W. Lepard and published in The Sight Saving Review of the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness. Dr. Lepard comments on a number of mistaken ideas that many lay persons have, such as that it is unwise to start wearing glasses because you will become dependent on them. That's about as sensible as saying that if a man has lost a leg he shouldn't wear an artificial one because he will love it so that he won't ever part with it.

As Dr. Lepard says, many small children greatly need glasses if only so that they won't become cross-eyed. People's eyes cross or turn out usually because the vision in one eye is so different from that of the other that the images from the two eyes cannot be fused in the brain. When the two images can't be fused, the brain has to learn to disregard one of them, and when this happens the eye with the disregarded image often develops a squint, and perhaps turns in to look at the child's nose.

Also, many children are born with a slight imbalance of the muscles which produce the movements of the eyes. Sometimes this is not enough to cause a constant squint. A strong contraction of one or other of the muscles of the eyes keeps the child from getting a squint. Occasionally, this constant pulling on the muscles gives the child headaches. Sometimes such a muscular imbalance can be helped by exercises, but in many cases it can be helped best by grinding one or more prisms into the person's glasses. These prisms bend the rays of light so that the muscles do not have to pull so hard in order to keep the eyes focused on an object. One reason for putting glasses on a small child is that they may save the sight of a poorly-made eye. If the vision in one eye of a child is bad enough from birth, the child may soon quit using that eye; and when he fails to use it, what little vision he had to begin with may be lost. If, however, glasses are put on him so that he can use the poor eye he may retain the vision he has.

One of the worst ideas that parents often have is that if glasses are put on a child they will "weaken his eyes." Actually, as I have said, glasses don't weaken eyes—instead they tend strongly to conserve what vision the child has. As Dr. Lepard says, recently he saw a six-year-old child who had been labeled "mentally retarded," because he didn't pay much attention to what was going on around him; he wouldn't look at picture books, and often he didn't recognize people.

When the doctor examined his eyes he found an error of refraction so large that the child was living in a world of blurs. The reason he wasn't interested in pictures or people was that he couldn't see them. Naturally, the child who cannot see cannot be terribly handicapped in growing up; his brain must somehow fail to develop because it is deprived of millions of stimuli that come to a normal child.

I'll never forget the story told me by my old friend, Dr. Hans Barkan, professor of ophthalmology at Stanford University. He had just had as a patient a very near-sighted woman, who, until she was 50, had refused to wear glasses. Then someone talked her into going and getting tested for a pair. Next day the police telephoned Dr. Barkan to say that there was a woman screaming and having hysterics on the sidewalk at Third and Market Streets. The police had gone through her purse and had found the doctor's card, and they wondered if he could give any explanation of her weird behavior. He said, "Just take her glasses off and she'll be all right," and she was.

What had happened was that she had walked out of the optician's with her new glasses on, and starting to cross a very busy street, had been horrified to see cars coming down on her, and people walking toward her from every direction. She had never seen such things before, and was naturally astounded. I suppose the moral of this tale is that when one is very near-sighted, one should get glasses early in life so as to get used to the world around one.

YOUR INCOME TAX

Any Rent Received Must Be Declared

By W. GORDON HOLMS, CA

If you rent as much as a single room in your house the income from this source must be considered in preparing your 1956 tax return.

And you must use the T-1 general form, not the T-1 short form.

Only in cases where gross expenses in renting a room exceed the total income can you ignore this source of income.

Those who are making a living or good portion of it from rentals will readily understand that this income is taxable.

But even if you only augment your income by renting part of a dwelling you are equally liable to taxation on this score.

In Greater Victoria there are thousands of individual room rentals, housekeeping rooms, single suites and separate apartments. There are allowable expenses which can be deducted from this income. But it must be remembered that the expenses are apportioned when only one or two rooms are let.

For example, if all the space in a building is let the total expenses can be claimed. If only one room in a five-room house is let, then one-fifth of the total expenses of the dwelling can be charged.

If a taxpayer owns an apartment house and lives in one of the suites, he should figure it this way: If the apartment block has 10 suites, eliminate one-tenth of the allowable expenses on the entire building.

The allowable expenses include property insurance, fire protection rates, taxes, insurance other than life insurance, cost of light, heat and water that is supplied ordinarily, repairs, mortgage interest (but not payments on principal) and capital cost allowance (depreciation).

HOME GARDEN By JACK BEASTALL

Over-Kindness Hits 4 Popular Plants

Petunias, nasturtiums, calendulas, and geraniums will be used extensively in garden and window box plantings this year.

These plants are favorites with gardeners because they give a mass of color throughout their season without demanding a lot of attention.

But there are times when these four subjects prove disappointing, as many gardeners discovered last year. The plants produced quantities of foliage at the expense of flowers, the latter appearing as an after-thought near the end of the season.

GOT A CASE ON VODKA? SIMPLY ORDER A CASE

If you really must drink like the Russians you can get vodka in B.C., but it's costly!

Vodka is not for sale on shelves of B.C. liquor stores, but special orders may be placed, for a case at $4.40 a bottle.

Victoria Liberal MLA George Gregory asked about imported vodka at the recent legislative session, for entertainment of a Russian delegation last summer.

Quite in order, said Attorney-General Robert Bonner. A special order had been placed.

So Mr. Gregory tried it, too. Today he received formal notification that the liquor board had imported, specially for him, one case of vodka. A case was the minimum order the liquor board would accept.

And he had to make a $25 deposit on the merchandise first.

JUDY BOOTS
(Barking for Monte Roberts)

Well what do you know I have reached a great decision and the decision I have reached is so great the Old Man has allowed me the use of this space today to tell you all about the great decision.

If I may say so as shouldn't this is no more than is the just due of such an intelligent female-type doggie which lives at the Old Man's House and mostly says nothing about anything let alone telling you about great decisions.

But this is such a great decision I am going to throw false modesty to the winds and announce it loud and clear to one and all and even sundry.

The great decision I have arrived at and make that read the great decision at which I have arrived if you prefer English as she should be spoke the great decision is this: (Large type, Mr. Printer, please.)

I AM GOING TO ENTER THE MISS VICTORIA CONTEST

Well there I have said it and I am glad I tell you glad because I do not see why a young female such as I (me?) should not become Miss Victoria and carry the banner of this Fair City to Far Flung Places.

It has just occurred to me perhaps you don't know about the Miss Victoria contest well the Miss Victoria contest is a thing the Junior Chamber of Commerce operates to decide who is the most charming of all the young females in Victoria and the winner is announced at the Victoria Industrial and Agricultural Exhibition and the winner receives great acclaim plus cash prizes and things.

So now you know all about the Miss Victoria contest and I guess you can see why I am entering after all I was born in Victoria and I am a Miss and intend to stay that way and I am charming and pretty and also talented in my own way.

I would dearly love to become Miss Victoria 1957 for which purpose I have used up the Old Man's space today with the intention of earnestly seeking your wholehearted support.

And if you think I am fooling why please remember everything which appears in this space is in deadly earnest at least deadly and you will be hearing more about this.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Total of donations to the Red Cross campaign here reached $67,897 at noon today—less than $12,000 away from the $79,500 goal.

Routine pyrotechnic exercises for training purposes will be conducted by Second Battalion Queen's Own Rifles of Canada Thursday and Friday in Albert Head and Mary Hill areas between 9 a.m. and 11 p.m.

City council was asked by finance committee today to institute a system of awards for employee safety suggestions.

The committee said suggestion boxes should be set up and cash or prizes amounting to about $150 a year be awarded.

A chain of office for Mayor Percy Scurrah which could cost between $295 and $1,040 will be included in the city's 1957 estimates.

Finance committee today studied four designs submitted by local merchants. City manager C. C. Wyatt was empowered by the 1956 finance committee to make recommendations.

"You people will have to settle this yourselves," said Mayor Scurrah.

"Maybe we can get a crown for you too," joked Ald. Arthur Dowell.

Slides of a European tour taken by B. C. Bracewell, retired deputy minister of municipal affairs, and Mrs. Bracewell, will be shown at a meeting of the League of the Handicapped at the YWCA Friday at 7:30 p.m.

Business portion of the meeting has been cancelled. Handicapped persons requiring transportation may call Fred Blakely at 4-1537, or Goodwill Enterprises, 2-8315.

FRIDAY MEETINGS

Men's Canadian Club: Empress Hotel, 12:10 p.m. luncheon, to be addressed by W. E. Gladstone Murray, general manager of Responsible Enterprises, Toronto, on "B.C.'s Part in Canada's Century."

Liberal Religious Fellowship (Unitarian): Suite 410, 745 Yates, 8:30 p.m.

CNR Veterans: Knights of Pythias Hall, 2 p.m. New CNR health plan will be reviewed.

Victoria Lions: Empress Hotel, noon luncheon.

First stage of a planned complete economic study of all phases of B.C. agriculture will be carried out this summer, acting Agriculture Minister Kenneth Kiernan announced today.

Market conditions and other aspects of the industry, particularly in the Fraser Valley, will be investigated by the provincial government in co-operation with UBC and the federal agriculture department.

Maps of alarm boxes and fire hydrants in Victoria West will be furnished the RCN fire department and a direct telephone line will connect the Dockyard fire service with the Victoria main hall while Point Ellice Bridge is being rebuilt.

Increased entry list means increased revenue for the festival, both through candidates' fees and general widened interest.

Entirely self-supporting, the festival committee retains only enough funds to underwrite the following year's festival, turning all other proceeds over and above expenses, into bursary and scholarship awards to outstanding students in various classes.

TRAFFIC FINES

In city police court today:

Marion E. Bradley, Oldfield Road, $35 for careless driving.

Neilson W. Harries, 664 Kelly, $35 for driving while under suspension.

Arthur Dawson Tervo, 1428 Wende, $50 for failing to remain at the scene of an accident and $35 for careless driving, plus licence suspension.

Gilbert R. Barbour, 1028 Richardson, $35 for careless driving and undertaking to drive only for business for one month.

Other likely candidates are mink rancher Herman F. Williams, salesman Norman Bell and pharmacist John D. Johnson.

Social Credit nominating convention to pick a candidate in the federal riding of Esquimalt-Saanich will be held April 12 in Colwood Hall.

Former Saanich Reeve Joseph Casey was reported today to be a possible nominee. Mr. Casey would neither confirm nor deny the report.

The Traveler, with four men aboard, is owned by Sig Olivick of Seattle. The radio report said it had a broken engine connecting rod, and was drifting 20 miles south of Estevan Point.

The USN says the torpedo is harmless but contains valuable electronic equipment.

$100 WAITING FOR TAKING ON WEST COAST

The U.S. coast guard today dispatched the Cutter McClane from Aberdeen, Wash., to aid the 65-foot fishing boat Traveler, whose skipper radioed that the vessel was disabled off Vancouver Island.

The Traveler, with four men aboard, is owned by Sig Olivick of Seattle. The radio report said it had a broken engine connecting rod, and was drifting 20 miles south of Estevan Point.

The USN says the torpedo is harmless but contains valuable electronic equipment.

City police were informed this week most of the missing property, valued at $1,057.15, was found abandoned in the countryside near Chilliwack.

Stolen items ranged from a flour sack to a postage meter machine; dress shirts to Chesterfield slip covers; and spirit level to blowtorch and steel punches.

There were 12 items of household goods such as drapes, laundry bag and tea towels; an adding machine and office typewriter; nine dress shirts, and an assortment of tools.

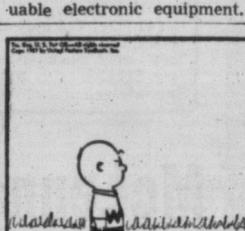

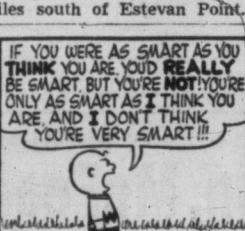

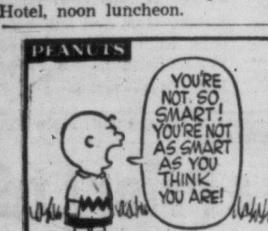

There was no report on how items reached the mainland, but it is presumed they were ditched by thieves who broke into the laundry office.

On completion of their camp, QORs will take annual leave of about 30 days after which they will begin preparations for moving to Montreal about early October.

The unit is scheduled to move to NATO posting in Germany in October. First Battalion Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, now in Europe, will replace QORs at Camp Gordon Head.

Advance party will leave for Montreal at termination of leave.

New Hall, Old Site, Urged on Council By Fire Committee

Farm Market Building Demolition Proposed

Demolition of the main Victoria fire hall and the old city market building to make room for a new fire hall was recommended today to city council.

Fire warden committeemen Mayor Percy Scurrah and Ald. Austin L. Curtis supported the scheme.

Ald. Arthur Dowell opposed it. He felt further attempts should be first made to obtain a portion of Central Junior High School grounds for the new hall.

Council recently approved expenditure of $350,000 from re-verted land sales fund for a new fire hall. But Ald. Curtis, chairman of the fire committee, said at noon no firm estimate of cost is yet at hand.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Slippers of Golden Lamé Accent Favorite Outfits

By PENNY SAVER

Here and there, everywhere . . . that's where I shopped today. I found many and varied items to interest you and to make shopping fun.

Lounging slippers that may also double as light and glittery slippers for an evening of dancing will, please the lady who loves feminine finery. The ballet-type slippers are styled of elasticized gold metallic lame and come in sizes small, medium and large. One of the wonderful features of these slippers is that they are hand washable, and the gold is non-tarnishable. You can fold them up neatly into a little clear plastic bag that comes with them, and they'll tuck into purse or bag to take on jaunts with you. They fit snugly, of course, the elasticized material as large gold button earrings are all the rage this season. They come with smooth or bumpy surfaces; some resemble powdered nuggets. They look so smart with tweed and tailored outfit that you'll want several pair of various styles and sizes. You can afford them, too, for the price is just $1. Curves, ovals, circles, squares . . . they come in all shapes in either shiny or dulled golden finishes.

It's certain that some women will be interested in the lightweight linen fabric maternity clothes that have just arrived. They are afternoon outfits, attractively fashioned to serve you well during the summer. They are priced at $6.95, $8.95 and $10.95, and come in coral, navy, turquoise and black.

Some time ago I told you about quill pens brought up to date with ball point ends. Now you can buy these colorfully-tinted quill ball points with novel stands for your desk. The stands, that can also be used as charming ink pots for regular pens, are glazed pottery in modern shapes. There are also some with dainty patterns of roses. The pens, with ink pots, are priced at $2.95 and $3.50. They add a different touch to your desk, and are also conversation pieces.

To keep that special picture clean and like new, buy a folding leather picture case in any one of the colors available. These cases hold one to three pictures, depending on your requirements. Brown, black or red leather, with plastic front pieces for the picture compartments makes these holders just the thing when your travelling, for they can be tucked into your bag and even if the case is bent a little, the leather will not mark. They are priced at $2.50, $2.95, $3.95, $4.95 and $5.95.

Pianist Speaks Of Examiner

Herbert Fryer, who died recently was subject of a short address given by Miss Mary Munn at a meeting of the Royal Schools' Alumni Association, held in her Falkland Road home. Mr. Fryer was well known in Canada and particularly in Victoria, as one of the examiners of the associated board.

Pians were made during the business meeting for the annual picnic in June. Later, Miss Munn entertained with a group of outstanding piano solos by Bach, Mozart, Griffiths, Prokofieff and Chopin.

Refreshments were served by candlelight.

NEW LOOK FOR SPRING

High, Square or Tip-Tilted Millinery Has Unique Charm

Spring definitely "went to lady's head," settled on her well-manicured hands, at her neck and on her wrists, Wednesday afternoon in the Oak Bay United Church hall, where the Athena Club presented a spring tea and fashion show.

A bower of early spring flowers created a stage setting for the showing of millinery, gloves and costume jewelry, presented by Toojays Ltd.

Mrs. J. Riome was the commentator and the models, who came down from the stage and strolled among the tea tables, were Mrs. H. Cole, Mrs. G. B. Marshall, Mrs. A. J. Bowering, Mrs. B. Bugsleg, Mrs. H. J. Williams, Mrs. C. H. Moore and Mrs. L. D. Shortt.

Theme of the showing was "Flair and Flowers." Colors were "flower fresh"; hats showed exotic trims of pink and red rose garlands, violets, hyacinths and lilacs; gloves were in the longer length.

With five different changes of color in hats, gloves and accessories the basic suit or dress worn by each model was made to look quite different and ready to do duty around the clock.

Tea was served at small tables centred with dainty arrangements of small spring blossoms. Mrs. A. Landels and Mrs. H. McCaw were in charge.

Mrs. Denis Humphries presided at the meeting and welcomed new members, Mme. Gabrielle Yewdall, Mrs. James Fraser and Mrs. J. Howard McKay.

Mrs. D. B. Roxburgh, convenor of arrangements for the seventh annual garden party of the society in late July, announced that it will again be held at "Arlow Farm," the country home of Capt. and Mrs. Massy Goolden.

Mrs. Arthur Laundy is co-convenor and a highlight of the affair will be a fashion show presented by the T. Eaton Company.

ANOTHER REFUTATION

Emily Carr Friend Scornful of Tobey

A spirited denial of artist Mark Tobey's recent statement that "there would have been no Emily Carr if it hadn't been for me" was made today by Miss Flora Hamilton Burns, 1032 New-port Avenue.

Describing herself as an intimate friend of Emily Carr long before and after Mark Tobey entered her life, she said Miss Carr had a long line of distinguished and well-known art teachers who freed her artistic years recognized her gifts.

These included Algernon Tallmage and John Whiteley in England in 1901-02; Harry Gibb, with whom she studied in Paris and Brittany in 1910 and 1911, and men of the Colorossi Studio in Paris.

ACCLAIM IN 1927

According to Miss Burns, Emily Carr had never met Mark Tobey when Eric Brown, curator of the National Gallery in Ottawa, first asked her in 1927 to exhibit 26 of her pictures. She met some of the famous Group of Seven at the gallery, and they acclaimed her pictures and asked her to exhibit at their own show.

"Here is what Lawren Harris said on seeing her pictures for the first time and being asked to criticize them: 'Your work is impressive. I really have, nor can have, nothing to say in the way of criticism. I feel you have found a way of your own. The pictures are works of art in their own right . . . have creative life in them . . . they breathe'."

Mr. Tobey said that a woman living Miss Carr's circumscribed life could not have developed as she did, and conceived her great swirling canvases, unless there had been someone to indicate the way for her.

"I was that person," he said in an interview here, March 25.

Miss Carr's own statement of the greatest influence on her career as an artist is as follows, according to Miss Burns:

IDEAS CHANGED

"The day I entered the building, climbed the cold stairs, was met by Mr. Harris and led into his tranquil studio—that day my idea of art wholly changed. My first impression of Lawren Harris has never faltered. His work and example did more to influence my outlook on art than any other school or any master.

The choir, conducted by Vera Barclay, was in good form after a slightly insecure start, and assisting soloists Nancy Dale, Seattle harpist, and John Bray, Victoria baritone, could not have been better chosen to give contrast and additional brilliance to the evening.

Notable in the choral portion of the program was the shining tonal texture, beautiful attack—particularly fine and delicate in the opening chorus of the cantata, "Eden Spirits"—rhythmic vitality and sincerity.

Among many delightful numbers was Dett's "Listen to the Lambs" and "Somebody's Knocking at Your Door," the Eriskay "Love Lilt" and the Charles Wood "Eden Spirits."

Excellent soprano quality was revealed by choir soloists Rosa Robertson, Marlene Vance and Beverly Glenday.

Twelve-year-old Nancy Dale proved to be a genuine rarity—a budding concert harpist of precocious ability; but more than that, the young lady is a musician in a very real sense.

John Bray, a favorite of the Victoria concert stage, has an excellently placed, full and musical baritone and sings with confidence and style.

James Saunders at the piano, gave excellent support throughout.

Miss Burns does not deny that Tobey stimulated Miss Carr.

"She derived enjoyment and benefit from their hours of work and discussion when he was her guest once or twice in the late 20s and early 30s, and I was present on some of those occasions," Miss Burns said about her old friend. "It was he who helped her to overcome the actions of household duties by relegating them to second place, as she recounts in her autobiography.

"At the time of one of his visits, Emily Carr was striving to master the theory of abstract art, and I know she valued his help in this, but while she was often moved by it in the work of others, and perceived its underlying truth, she was never drawn to it as a medium for herself."

Schubert Choir In Top Form—As Always

By AUDREY ST. JOHNSON

It is always pleasant to welcome back an old friend, and return of the Schubert Club, a female voice choir which has given consistent pleasure during its years of concertizing in Victoria, was such an occasion.

All-round excellence marked the first concert after a year's absence at Oak Bay Junior High School Wednesday night.

The choir, conducted by Vera Barclay, was in good form after a slightly insecure start, and assisting soloists Nancy Dale, Seattle harpist, and John Bray, Victoria baritone, could not have been better chosen to give contrast and additional brilliance to the evening.

MYSTERIOUS WARTIME VISIT FROM WENNER-GREN

The Man Who Came to Lunch

By V. R. WILLCOCK

Axel Wenner-Gren, the mystery man of the world, is no stranger to British Columbia. It was during the war that I met him up the coast at Stuart Island, situated at the mouth of Bute Inlet.

His arrival at Stuart Island was a little mysterious. I had noticed a small boat coming across the Yucaipa Rapids. When the boat docked, I noticed five men in it and as soon as they were tied up two sailors in uniform came to attention and saluted as the three passengers climbed ashore.

I introduced myself and asked if there was anything I could help them with. With Wenner-Gren were his captain and a gentleman who said he was his secretary. I didn't see any big boat around so I naturally asked where they had come from. The captain informed me that the boat was drifting around the mouth of Bute Inlet as it was too big to tie up at the average upcoast float. As soon as he mentioned "The Southern Cross" I was very interested, as I knew that this boat was considered one of the world's finest yachts.

Asked for Lunch

After the introductions I was asked if they could have lunch, as my family were the only people at this point. I said that I would speak to the wife, so we walked up the floats towards the house. On the way one of the three asked if we had beer. I informed the party that beer was a pretty scarce thing up-coast on account of the war.

The wife said that she would give them lunch, but as the boat hadn't come in there was no fresh meat, just ham and eggs.

I informed the party and they said that it would be all right. Up to that point Wenner-Gren hadn't spoken much English. But he got talking about the country, what we did: population; how the people made a living, etc.

When lunch was ready I took them into the kitchen and introduced them to Mrs. Willcock. I noticed Wenner-Gren took a great interest in the kitchen.

My wife had set two places at one side of the table and one at the end. She seated the captain and secretary at the side and pulled out the chair at the end for Mr. Wenner-Gren.

He quit the films in 1948 and came to the desert. He spent the rest of his days on a ranch, but he didn't buy a home. Instead, he rented an adobe apartment by the year.

Pictures in which Sparks appeared included, "The Big Noise," "Love Came Along," "The Canary Murder Case," "Strange Cargo," "Alice in Wonderland," "Sing and Like It," "George White's 1935 Scandals," "Two's Company" and "For Beauty's Sake".

GREGORY PECK in

"MOBY DICK"

With Richard Basehart, Orson Welles, Lee J. Cobb, James Robertson Justice, Harry Andrews, Bernard Miles

The story of a whaling captain's search for the Great White Whale which had previously devoured his leg is one of high adventure and suspense. Based on the book by Herman Melville, it is recommended as first-class entertainment for the whole family. Filmed in Technicolor, the picture is remarkable for its authenticity and effect. A sea story which has become a classic. Well recommended.

'MURDER BY SLANDER'
CHARGED IN COMMONS

CHILDHOOD SWEETHEART HELD FOR MURDER

Vivacious Mother of Two
'Loved Life So Very Much'

Leland Eugene Miller, 30, former Victoria milkman, is in Oakalla prison today charged with slashing the throat of his childhood sweetheart. Mrs. Dorothy Frances Duyvejonck, 30, Tuesday night at Courtenay. He was remanded Wednesday by Magistrate John Ryland for eight days without plea.

An autopsy was performed today but details were not released. There will be no inquest.

The dead woman and Miller were childhood friends at North Ward school. Years passed and they met here again last September.

They went to Courtenay from Victoria in mid-March and lived together there.

The murdered woman's parents were reedeyed but calm today, 24 hours after hearing from the RCMP that their vivacious blonde daughter had been slain.

Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Smith, who live in a tiny brown house at 31½ St. Lawrence this morning were almost recovered from the initial shock.

WELL LIKED
But Mrs. Smith's voice shook slightly as she spoke of her daughter.

"Dot loved life so very much, so very much. Everybody liked her."

They heard the grim news at 9:45 a.m. Wednesday from an RCMP constable.

"It wasn't a shock at first, until the news had time to sink in," said Mrs. Smith.

The RCMP man was blunt, but I suppose it's his job," said Mr. Smith, a retired Victoria fireman.

Friends and acquaintances of the dead woman spoke highly of her happy approach to life... "she was jolly as hell," said previous co-workers at a city laundry where Mrs. Duyvejonck had been employed as a shirt presser.

She had worked in several laundries in Victoria "off and on."

Her parents knew the man being held for murder.

"He was a nice, quiet fellow. I can't imagine what happened; something must have snapped," said Mr. Smith.

ON 'SPECIFIED' LIST

Wenner-Gren 'Enemy'
In War Commons Told

(See Also Page 20)

OTTAWA (CP)—State Secretary Pinard informed CCF'er G. H. Castleden Wednesday — in a roundabout way—that Swedish financier Axel Wenner-Gren was considered an enemy of Canada during the Second World War.

Mr. Castleden, member for Yorkton, Sask., asked in a written question whether the multi-millionaire was "ever placed on the list of persons deemed by the Canadian government to be enemies of Canada." If so, when and for what reasons?

Mr. Pinard replied in the Commons that the answer could be found in order-in-council PC 345 of Feb. 3, 1942, published in the Canada Gazette at that time.

The Canada Gazette for Feb. 14, 1942, showed the name of Axel Wenner-Gren, as a resident of Mexico, was in a "list of specified persons" with whom Canadians were prohibited to trade.

It said that persons in the list "although not resident or employed in business in enemy territory or in territory in occupation of the enemy are, by reason of their nationality or enemy association, persons with whom trading is prohibited, and that the entering into of transactions or doing of any acts with, to, or on behalf of such persons, is trading with the enemy and that such persons shall be deemed to be and to have been enemies from and including the second day of September, 1939, for the purposes of the regulations respecting trading with the enemy."

It added that the name of Axel Wenner-Gren, as a resident of Mexico, was in a "list of specified persons" with whom Canadians were prohibited to trade.

It said that persons in the list "although not resident or employed in business in enemy territory or in territory in occupation of the enemy are, by reason of their nationality or enemy association, persons with whom trading is prohibited, and that the entering into of transactions or doing of any acts with, to, or on behalf of such persons, is trading with the enemy and that such persons shall be deemed to be and to have been enemies from and including the second day of September, 1939, for the purposes of the regulations respecting trading with the enemy."

The report said: "The role of naval forces in total war is somewhat uncertain. It may well be that the initial nuclear bombardment by aircraft or rockets would be so crippling as to bring the war to an end within a few weeks or even days."

"In which case naval operations would not play any significant part."

The government noted that the British "megaton weapon" has been developed and will shortly be tested. Thereafter a stock would be manufactured.

The report said British atomic bombs are in steady production and the RAF holds a substantial number of them.

A reduction of Britain's secret tactical air force in Germany to about half the present number of planes by the end of March, 1958, would be offset by equipping some of the squadrons with atomic bombs.

Britain's revised defence bill for 1957-58 was estimated at

NORMAN NEVER WAS RED
SAYS ROBERT MAYHEW

Robert W. Mayhew, Victoria, retired Canadian ambassador to Japan, today expressed deep grief over the death of Herbert Norman, Canadian ambassador to Egypt.

Mr. Norman was in Japan for Canada before Mr. Mayhew took up his post there in 1952, but they knew each other well in Ottawa where Mr. Mayhew was a cabinet minister.

Mr. Mayhew flatly repudiated the suggestion that Mr. Norman had been a Communist.

"I don't believe a word of it. He is not a Communist and never was one," he said. "He was an excellent chap and very helpful to me when I was preparing for the Tokyo position."

Envoy Jumped
From 7th Floor

CAIRO (CP)—Herbert Norman, Canadian ambassador to Egypt who was distressed by accusations of Communist tendencies by a United States Senate sub-committee, plunged to his death today from a seventh-floor window.

The 48-year-old ambassador fell from a window in the home of Carl Eng, Sweden's minister to Egypt. His death was declared a suicide by Egyptian police.

The Canadian Embassy said he apparently took his life because of "recent unpleasant publicity and accusations."

Norman died, in the words of a note he left addressed to his wife, "without hope"—despite the fact that the Senate sub-committee's allegations that he was a former Communist had been repudiated by the U.S. state department and despite a vigorous defence of his record by External Affairs Minister Pearson in parliament at Ottawa.

The note, scrawled on embassy paper, was found in the pocket of his light grey suit. It was a note addressed to the Swedish minister Brynolf Eng, not home at the time, apologizing for using the building to take his life.

Egypt's semi-official Middle East News Agency said the letter to his wife read in part: "I kiss your feet and I beg you to forgive me for what I am doing."

The one to Eng said in part: "I have no option. I must kill myself for 'ye live with hope.' This is a quotation from the Bible."

PACED ALONG ROOF

Eyewitnesses say Norman was pacing along the roof of the building. A group had gathered before he jumped.

A preliminary autopsy showed Norman died instantly of head injuries.

Policemen said Norman had told his driver to park his car outside the embassy while he took a walk. He entered the Swedish building, took the elevator to the seventh floor and jumped from a window.

After his body was taken to hospital police cordoned off the area. Gen. Aziz Ali, head of Egyptian security, conducted on-the-spot investigations.

Norman left his watch and glasses in the attic. His body was lying face down on the pavement.

Norman was reported by associates to have been depressed over continuing attempts by the American sub-committee to smear him. As late as March 28 the sub-committee on internal security, ignoring protests by Canada and its own state department, released further testimony alleging Norman had been linked with communism.

It released testimony by a committee counsel that the FBI had given the state department information which confirmed the previous allegations—going back to 1951—when Norman was linked with the Reds.

The state department, following

Canada's protest over release of similar material March 14, had asked the sub-committee not to release the later testimony because "it might be damaging to our friendly relations with Canada."

The Canadian protest had come after Pearson defended Norman in the House of Commons, March 15, the day after the first current period. Pearson referred to the sub-committee's "slanders" and

Renewed Persecution
Blamed by Pearson
In Norman Suicide

OTTAWA (CP)—Allstair Stewart, CCF member for Winnipeg North Centre, said in the Commons today

Herbert Norman, Canadian ambassador to Egypt, was "murdered by slander."

He said Mr. Norman had died as surely as if someone had put a knife in his back.

Speakers for all parties, including Prime Minister St. Laurent, paid tribute to Mr. Norman, who committed suicide in Cairo today.

External Affairs Minister Pearson had expressed his appreciation to Mr. Pearson and Opposition Leader Diefenbaker for their defence of Mr. Norman.

Mr. Norman said that though the allegations were vexing, the reaction to them in the Commons had increased his pride in and devotion to free Canadian institutions.

Mr. Diefenbaker said it is wholly desirable to protect freedom but that freedom will not be preserved by adopting the techniques of communism.

All members felt deep sorrow that Mr. Norman's good name

... NORMAN

unsupported insinuations" against Norman, and dismissed them as old allegations which had long before been investigated and disproved.

Norman's name first came up in the Senate sub-committee in 1951 when the group, then headed by the late senator Patrick McCarran (Dem. Nev.), was investigating the institute of Pacific relations.

The Canadian government protested to the U.S. then and expressed surprise Norman's name had been "dragged" into the hearings. The protest, delivered orally to the state department in Washington, was reported in Ottawa to be one of the strongest exchanged between the two governments.

Canada's external affairs department said Norman was cleared of Communist suspicion by a double security check. Pearson said the U.S. government was told Norman was a "highly respected and trusted senior official."

Following the latest Canadian protest, the state department said allegations in the hearing transcript "do not represent opinions of the United States government."

The sub-committee made public testimony taken at closed hearings March 12 and March 21. Both hearings included testimony from John K. Emerson, counsellor of the U.S. embassy at Beirut, Lebanon, who said he had known Norman since 1949 and never had any reason to think Norman was a Communist.

However, sub-committee counsel Robert Morris declared at the March 12 hearing that a security report of a U.S. government agency indicated Norman had been identified in 1940 as a Communist, and that there was other "information to the effect that he is a Communist."

Maj. Gen. Charles Willoughby, MacArthur's chief of intelligence in Tokyo, told the committee he had known Norman there. He said "I'm reluctant to dwell on this," and was not pressed further.

Newsweek magazine said in 1951: "As the government's top expert on Far Eastern questions, Norman was chief of a Canadian liaison mission in Tokyo until last autumn (1950). He formed an abiding distrust of MacArthur and his aides, and his reports back to Ottawa were a major reason for Canada's hesitancy to commit ground troops to MacArthur's command."

Norman's death bereaved the entire foreign diplomatic corps in Cairo. The tall, grey-haired, gentle-mannered Canadian envoy was a popular figure.

A diplomatic colleague said: "I cannot believe this really happened. We just had dinner with Norman and his wife at the Spanish Embassy the day before yesterday. Ever since the U.S. accusation he has been in a broadening mood but at that party he seemed quiet and we chatted pleasantly about a variety of subjects."

Maj.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns, Canadian commander of the United Nations Emergency Force in Egypt, said: "I was terribly shocked and grieved to hear of the most unfortunate death of Ambassador Norman."

LIVELY IN SPIRIT

"I saw him only a few weeks ago and he was in perfect health and lively in spirit. I have worked with him and he was a very fine Canadian public servant."

Norman's last appearance in public was at a Japanese Embassy film showing in a Cairo cinema Wednesday night.

The film, called Mask and Destiny, portrays an exiled governor who carves a mask which, despite his efforts
